GENTRY NOW SAYS DICTOGRAPH RECORD WAS TAMPERED WITH

Detective E. O. Miles Gives Out Affidavit From Young Stenographer Repudiating Transcript He Swore to

AFFIDAVIT OBTAINED IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

G. C. Febuary Gives Out a Statement, Telling How Notes Were Transcribed and Affidavits Made

The accuracy of the now famous dictograph records of alleged conversations between Thomas B. Felder, Mayor Woodward, C. C. Jones, E. O. Miles, G. C. Febuary and A. S. Coylar is attacked in an affidavit which E. O. Miles has turned over to Mayor Woodward and which he says he obtained from George M. Gentry, the young stenographer who took down the dictograph conversations.

This affidavit was made in Washington, D. C., where Miles, one of the dictographed parties, who is a private detective, says he found Gentry. According to this affidavit, Gentry swears that a number of changes were made in the dictograph records after they were transcribed by him. The only specific change set out in the affidavit, however, is that the names of Police Chief Beavers and Detective Chief N. A. Lanford were written into the record of Mayor Woodward's conversation by some one other than the stenographer.

In this affidavit Gentry explains his disappearance from the city by declaring that when he compared the published records with his stenographic notes he realized that he had been duped and did not care to face the humiliation which he anticipated would follow.

These dictographed records, duly sworn to by young Gentry and others, were published in The Journal, which declined to print these documents unless they were attested before a notary public. These records and affidavits are still in the possession of The Journal, and this paper has no knowledge concerning the alleged changes.

GENTRY READ PROOFS.

Young Gentry was permitted to use one of The Journal's typewriters to transcribe his dictograph notes. He and Febuary were left alone in the news department Wednesday night, May 21, to do this work. They left a copy of the records in a desk drawer for The Journal. Early on the morning of May 22 Gentry furnished The Journal with an affidavit attesting the correctness of the records.

Later he came to The Journal office with his notebook and read the proofs which he compared with his shorthand notes, and in one or two places he made minor changes, as he said, to better conform to the original notes.

He was advised to preserve his notes so that in the event any question was raised as to their accuracy, he would have the stenographic record from which to make answer.

The Journal does not undertake to say whether there are or are not discrepancies in the transcribed records compared to the shorthand notes. It has simply collected the two sets of records and statements furnished by Gentry and others, which records and statements, as stated above, are still in the possession of The Journal and in exactly the same condition as they were when turned over to this paper by Gentry, Febuary and others.

FEBUARY MAKES STAETMENT.

G. C. Febuary, secretary to Detective Chief N. A. Lanford, who was a party to some of the dictographed conversations and who was with Gentry, the stenographer, when some of the dictograph notes were transcribed, has furnished The Journal with the following statement:

"The dictograph conversations between A. S. Colyar, T. B. Felder and myself were transcribed on a typewriter in the news department of The Atlanta Journal by George M. Gentry, the stenographer who took the conversations down in shorthand as he heard them through a dictograph.

"John Paschall and Harllee Branch, of The Atlanta Journal, were present for about an hour and a half and A. S. Colyar was present for about half an hour. Gentry began transcribing the dictographed record about 10 p. m., Wednesday, May 21. When Mr. Paschall and Mr. Branch found Gentry would not be able to complete the work as soon as expected they left and directed that the copy intended for The Journal be left in a designated desk drawer. Colyar had been gone for about an hour when they left.

"The record was completed about 4 o'clock the next morning, and a copy was left in the desk drawer for The Journal. Neither Mr. Paschall nor Mr. Branch made any suggestions as to the contents of the record. They were only waiting for get a copy for The Journal.

"Both of these gentlemen advised Gentry that if there was anything in his notes which he could not read he

THE SCENT OF MOTH BALLS IS IN THE AIR

CONLEY'S STATUS IN PHAGAN CASE MAY BE CHANGED WEDNESDAY

Petition Will Be Presented to Judge Roan by Solicitor Dorsey but Its Nature Is Not Made Known

ROSSER'S CARD CAUSES ACTIVITY BEHIND SCENES

Negro May Be Put Back in the Tower – Solicitor Dorsey Says: "I Am Trying to Run State's Case Myself"

The report became current Wednesday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock that the new development in the Phagan case would be a withdrawal by the state of its petition in court whereunder James Conley, the negro, is held as a material witness.

Shortly before 2 o'clock, William Smith, attorney for the negro, and Solicitor Dorsey appeared at the court house together, for this purpose, it was said.

Attorney Smith does not want the negro confined in the Fulton county jail, where he declares he was menaced during the one night that he spent there after his affidavit became public. There has been no insistence from Attorney Smith, it is said, that any damage whatever be made in the status of the negro.

As the result of the clash between the prosecution and the defense of Leo M. Frank, over James Conley, it is expected that the negro's legal status will be changed in some way, probably Wednesday afternoon.

It is also barely possible that Conley will be indicted Thursday by the grand jury as an accessory after the fact of Mary Phagan's murder, but this is not considered probable.

Conley is now at police headquarters, held by authority of an order from Judge L. S. Roan, of the criminal division of the superior court. Conley is held as a material witness in the case against Frank.

The negro sweeper was transferred soon after he made his sensational confession, charging Frank with being the principal in the Phagan murder, from police headquarters to the Tower, where he remained about twenty-four hours.

Then he was transferred again, on a superior court order, to police headquarters, his attorney, William M. Smith, consenting to the move.

The obvious reason for the transfer was to prevent the negro's talking to interviewers, who are allowed into the jail if the the prisoner has no objection to talking to them.

At police headquarters only the detective and sometimes the prisoner's lawyer, is allowed to see him.

Conley's attorney, William M. Smith, stated Wednesday that he would prefer for the negro to be interned at police headquarters rather than at the tower.

JAILERS CAN PROTECT HIM.

The reason assigned by the detectives for removing Conley from the tower was his own statement to the effect that visitors at the tower had annoyed him as they passed his cell.

It is argued, however, that the jailors can protect the negro if he is held in the tower, and if it is decided that, from a strictly legal sense there is no authority for holding Conley at headquarters, Solicitor Dorsey would probably find him in the tower again, held as a material witness.

As to the probability of the grand jury's indicting the negro either as an accessory or a principal, little can be said with any authority. Several of the individual jurors are said to be interesting themselves in the matter and many inquiries have been made as to the reason for the prosecuting official's failure to bring a bill against the negro before the jury.

It is certain, however, that no bill charging Conley with being a principal will be presented by the solicitor's office unless demanded by the grand jury.

The interest of the individual jurors makes it probable there will be action in the near future.

WHAT DORSEY SAYS.

Asked if Conley would be taken before the grand jury to tell his story to the citizens who indicted Frank for Mary Phagan's murder, Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said simply: "I am trying to run the state's case by myself."

L. H. Beck, the foreman of the jury, stated that the jury would take up

SENATE OPENS PROBE ON W. VIRGINIA MINES

Investigating Committee in the Coal Fields to Learn of Alleged Troubles

(By Associated Press.)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 11.—True to its announcement that witnesses would be examined as rapidly as possible, the United States senate committee investigating mining conditions in this state began work early today. Preliminaries were completed and several witnesses examined yesterday.

Adjutant General Charles D. Elliott, of West Virginia, who was in command of the military in the strike zone, was the first witness today. He was examined at length as to the dates on which the various periods of martial law began. General Elliott presented copies of the requests of the sheriffs of Kanawha, Raleigh and Fayette counties for military aid and the various orders of former Governor Glasscock establishing martial law.

Under examination by Senator Borah, General Elliott described the trial of offenders by the military court after the civil courts had been superseded. With the basis of their inquiry firmly laid, the members of the senate committee investigating the Virginia coal strike situation today proceeded to lay bare the process by which more than 150 square miles of West Virginia, were placed under martial law. Senator Borah, of Idaho, took charge of the inquiry under that section of the senate resolution directing "a probe of the charge that citizens had been deprived of their rights under the constitution."

The military officers, who were concerned with the proclamation of martial law in the strike district and with the administration of affairs there under martial law, and who were summoned yesterday were the first witnesses to be called today. Their records were needed to make clear the procedure followed by former Governor Glasscock in proclaiming martial law. Judge Advocate General George Wallace, Adjutant General Charles D. Ellis, Major James A. Pratt, Captain Charles A. Morgan and Captain Samuel L. Walker were on the list.

Former Representative Joseph H. Gaines, an impromptu witness, furnished the committee with the testimony which will form the basis of the investigation concerning the alleged supersoding of the civil authority by the military forces. Mr. Gaines detailed to the committee the judicial institutions of West Virginia, showing that three courts, the courts of the justice of the peace, the intermediate courts and the circuit court had jurisdiction over all offenses committed in the strike zone.

He said that throughout the period when the military tribunal was in charge of the strike district, these courts were open and were conducting their business.

"Then there was no reason why these men arrested in the strike zone could not have been brought to Charleston, or taken before any justice of the peace in Kanawha county and tried?" asked Senator Swanson.

"None that I can see," answered Mr. Gaines.

He said that even though the courts in the strike district itself might have

Such precautions had been taken that it was believed the American casualties in the fight would be few.

MacDonald is alleged to have murdered Jones because the missionary insisted that MacDonald should close the mine on Sunday. A coroner's jury exonerated MacDonald, who went to Guanajuato, where he became general manager of a mining company. When MacDonald was brought to Juneau from Mexico he paid all the expenses of the marshal's party and a small army of witnesses.

TURK GRAND VIZIER KILLED ON STREETS OF CONSTANTINOPLE

Grand Vizier and Minister of War Mahmoud Schefket Pasha Assasinated by Two Men With Revolvers

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 11.—The Turkish grand vizier, Mahmoud Schefket Pasha, was assassinated at noon today by two armed men with revolvers who attacked him while he was proceeding in his motor car to the Sublime Porte.

It is believed in governmental circles here that the assassination of the grand vizier was the outcome of a plot against the committee of Union and Progress (young Turks).

Ibraham Bey, aide de camp of Mahmoud Schefket Pasha, also was killed by the assassins. It is understood the men who committed the crime are civilians.

Mahmoud Schefket Pasha had held office as grand vizier since January 23 this year, when Kiamil Pasha resigned. On the same day Nazim Pasha, the commander of the Turkish army at the Tchatalja lines, was shot dead during a demonstration in Constantinople.

Mahmoud Schefket Pasha was a pure Arab and a native of Bagdad. He was brought to Constantinople with his family when he was a boy. After studying at the military school he graduated at eighteen years of age with the highest honors.

He was a great favorite of the former Sultan Abdul Hamid, who appointed him to the general staff. Afterward he proceeded to Germany and stayed there ten years studying the organization of the Germany army.

Mahmoud Schefket Pasha, despite his close intimacy with Abdul Hamid, was the moving spirit in fostering the military revolution which brought about that sultans fall.

Soon after the outbreak of the Balkan war, Mahmoud Schefket Pasha was appointed chief of the commissariat department of the Turkish war office and he was one of those present at the grand council of the empire which decided in January this year to accept the proposal of the European powers to bring the war to an end.

Europe Will Lend No Money For Another War in Balkans

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 11.—The great powers are exerting every effort to prevent the Balkan states from flying at each others throats, and, reports from Vienna indicate, with some success. Russia and Germany particularly are busy counselling peace and moderation, and the French government is supporting them, and, as the principal creditor, is giving both Servia and Bulgaria clear warning that in event of war no financial assistance will be worthcoming either before or after hostilities.

Since Servia has definitely declared she will avoid all provocations toward Bulgaria, even should the latter refuse revision of the treaty of alliance, and will wait before proclaiming annexation of the occupied territories, and since Bulgaria has also expressed readiness to do everything possible to maintain peace, it is still hoped that war may be averted.

The Neu Freie Presse learns that Dr. Ianoff shortly will form a new cabinet at Sofia. No military reasons for further delaying existing, as the Bulgarian army is ready for action on the Servian and Macedonian frontiers.

GARY SAYS CONTRACTS ARE "PERFECTLY PROPER"

Steel Company Head Says Purchaser and Seller Have Right to Make Contract

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 11.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, testified today that he thought "under some circumstances," it was "perfectly proper" for a purchaser to enter into a contract with a seller that the latter should not compete with the purchaser after having sold out to him. Judge Gary was under cross-examination in the hearings of the suit to dissolve the corporation.

Judge Jacob M. Dickinson, government attorney, put into evidence an alleged contract between the corporation and owners of the Union Steel company, taken over by the corporation in 1902, under which the Union Steel owners agreed to stay out of the steel industry for ten years, except in Arizona and Florida. Judge Gary's name was signed to the contract.

The witness said he did recall having read the contract when he signed it. On general principles, he said, he did not approve of such contracts.

Judge Gary said that although he became a director of the National Tube company, he did not know very much of its affair at the time.

"I didn't think that I was as careful as a director in those days as I am now," he said. "I think we have all been stirred up to being more careful at the present time."

Dr. C. E. Boyd was elected to the chair of Greek at Emory, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Prof. A. G. Sanders. He is a Ph.D. graduate from the University of Wisconsin, and has taught for the past five years in the Woman's college, of Tallahassee, Fla.

Claimed to Make Precious Stones From Old Garbage

(By Associated Press.)

CINCINNATI, O., June 11.—While he is not a chemist, Sergeant of Detectives Pottebaum last night was not impressed with the scheme of William McLoughlin, claiming to be a chemist, of Comas, Idaho, and who said that he had a process whereby precious stones could be made from garbage.

The detective was offered stock in a company which McLoughlin was organizing, and of which, the police claim, he has sold many $100 shares.

Father Graduates In the Same Class With His Offspring

(By Associated Press.)

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 11.—For the first time in the history of Indiana university a father, Willis Hickam, of Spencer, Ind., will graduate next week in the same class from the law school as his son, Hubert Hickam.

The father, a prominent lawyer, was a student in the institution in 1877, when it disbanded. The school was not reorganized for eleven years, and in the meantime the elder Hickam had finished his studies in a private office and become prominent in Indiana legal circles. Recently he petitioned the board of trustees of the university to allow him to complete his course. The request was granted.

HELP SOME BRIGHT FRIEND.

In a Booklovers' Campaign conducted in the Northwest last Winter the winner of a diamond ring was a young lady who had no idea of entering the Campaign, until one day one of her young men friends came in to the office and bought a Catalogue and Answer Book and all the pictures for her, saying that he knew Lizzie was a bright girl and would no doubt win a prize.

Lizzie found that the young man's opinion of her was correct and if she had not held down quite so close on some of her answers she would have carried off a larger prize. As it was her first attempt in a Campaign of that kind, she did well for a young woman to start in an enjoyable game in which the rewards are so handsome.

We are sure your friend would appreciate your kindness and would work hard to justify your opinion as to their ability to win. The Catalogue, Answer Book, a three months' subscription and all the prize pictures would only cost you $2.92 and might be worth $1,000 to some worthy friend who would always remember you with gratitude.

Try it today and make some one happy.

CITY COUNCIL IS ASKED TO REDUCE SMOKE LIMIT

Smoke Board Reommends Six Instead of Twelve Minutes, Effective April 1 ,1914

The city smoke board Tuesday afternoon passed resolutions recommending that the general council amend the smoke law by reducing the limit from twelve to six minutes in the hour, effective April 1, 1914.

Under the present law a smokestack is allowed to emit dense black smoke twelve minutes during the hour. As set forth by Smoke Inspector Poole in an exclusive interview in The Journal Tuesday, this limit is of no practical value, since if all the smokestacks gave out smoke twelve minutes during the hour the atmosphere would be rendered almost unbearable.

But to bring all stacks within a six-minute limit is a task that will require months of hard work by the smoke inspector and hence the smoke board recommends the above date for the change to be put in force.

Meanwhile, nearly all stacks in the half mile zone are already within the six-minute limit, and these are the ones where Inspector Poole has designed changes in furnace construction. He has finished in the half-mile zone and is now at work in the mile zone.

The board also recommended to council that the legislature be asked to amend the charter so as to authorize the city to enact laws to inspect and regulate boilers outside of the city limits. This is very necessary, as stacks outside of the city still would deluge the atmosphere with smoke even after all stacks inside the city had been brought within the six-minute limit. Practically all cities which regulate the smoke nuisance have this authority.

Another charter amendment recommended by the board is one authorizing th ecity to enact laws to inspect and regulate boilers. Inspector Poole declares that many boilers in the city are a menace to life and property, being liable to explode at any moment.

PENCIL FACTORY FOREMAN FREED IN DIVORCE COURT

Emil Schneegas Tells Jury His Wife Made Him Remove Shoes in Hall

An employe of the National Pencil company, Emil Schneegas, a foreman of a department at the plant, was freed in the Fulton divorce court Tuesday when he obtained a divorce of separation from Mrs. Laura Schneegas, of Jersey City.

Schneegas is the man who startled a Highland avenue neighborhood two years ago by announcing at the death of a woman, who had been regarded as his wife, that she had been his housekeeper.

The man told the divorce jury that for nine years his wife, from whom he has been separated for five years, made him take off his shoes in the hallway whenever he came home. She took his money from him, allowing him only a dollar a week, he alleged; and closed up half the rooms in the house to save expense, he said.

UNIQUE RAILROAD EXHIBIT TO FEATURE CELEBRATION

A very unique celebration of the semi-centennial of West Virginia and the golden jubilee of Wheeling in that state will take place in Wheeling the week of June 15. The unique feature will be the railroad exhibit which is being installed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The three original old engines, the Grasshopper, the Atlantic and the Jefferson, built for the Baltimore and Ohio in 1832, 1834 and 1836, respectively, and the old camel-back of 1848 will be on exhibition, and with them will be the latest and new Mallet type built for the road of 300 tons weight, while the first three locomotives weighed about five tons, carrying for their water tank a large barrel.

STAR COLLEGE ATHLETE ENTERS LAW IN ATLANTA

Paul L. Bartlett Associates With Moore & Branch—Son of Judge A. L. Bartlett

Paul L. Bartlett, a former football and baseball star at the University of Georgia, has been admitted to the Georgia bar and will practice law in Atlanta.

Young Bartlett, son of Judge A. L. Bartlett, who for eight years presided over the Tallapoosa circuit, graduated from the University of Georgia in 1911 with an A. B. degree, and on Saturday he was graduated from the Atlanta Law school with the degree of L. B.

In his practice before the courts in Atlanta, Mr. Bartlett will be associated with the firm of Moore & Branch, and will occupy offices with them in the Peters building.

During his college days Bartlett was on the University team for four years, and was captain of the baseball team when he was in his senior year. Students from the university declare that the team never saw a better shortstop, and this declaration is borne out by the fact that he held the position against all comers during the years '08, '09, '10 and '11.

Owing to parental objection, Mr. Bartlett gave up the football game in 1910 while in his junior year, after he had starred in two previous years as a half back on the university team.

POWDER SPRINGS PICNIC POSTPONED BY WEATHER

Another Sunday school picnic has been spoiled this week by the "cold weather." Officers of the Central Presbyterian Sunday school announced Wednesday that the picnic which was to have been held at Powder Springs, Ga., on Thursday of this week would be put off until the same day of next week. Tickets already had been issued to many of the Central Presbyterian members, but they will be honored next week.

The Central Presbyterian is one of the largest Sunday schools in Atlanta. Its picnic is an annual event of great interest and will be attended this year by over 500 people in the all-day excursion to Powder Springs. Further details of the picnic will be announced in the school Sunday morning.

BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS.

NEW PLUMBING LAW APPROVED BY MAYOR

Master and Employing Plumbers Now Required to Register and Give Bond

The new plumbing ordinance, passed by general council last Thursday, has been approved by Mayor James G. Woodward, thereby making it a law.

The main feature of the new ordinance is that it requires master plumbers to register with the chief plumbing inspector before doing business. The inspector issues a permit and takes a bond for the applicant to comply with all the city plumbing regulations. Failure to comply, or violation of any section of the ordinance, renders the offender liable to a fine of $100 or imprisonment for thirty days, either or both, in the discretion of the recorder; and repeated offenses render the offender liable to forfeiture of his permit.

The effect of this provision, according to the master plumbers, will be to stop irresponsible "shyster" plumbers from taking contracts, and will also tend to stop the theft of plumbing fixtures, which has lately become quite a widespread nuisance.

The new ordinance eliminates the obsolete features of the old plumbing ordinance, substitutes various new features, harmonizes and consolidates all the various plumbing laws of the city, and brings the whole up-to-date.

As it stands now, the ordinance constitutes a plumbing code, covering the whole subject of plumbing in somewhat the same thoroughgoing way that the city building code covers the subject of building.

FEARFUL STORY TOLD WINS DIVORCE DECREE

Mrs. Willie Hudson Charged Cruelty—To Go on Stage as Dancer

Weeping quietly as she told the story of her unhappy married life, Mrs. Willie Hudson, a dainty blonde little woman, garbed in a blue tailored suit, caught and held every eye in a crowded courtroom until she left the stand Tuesday morning, with a divorce decree against L. W. Hudson, Atlanta lawyer, an.

During her tearful recital the young woman kept one gloved hand over her eyes and not until she left the court room could she be quieted.

Mrs. Hudson, who shortly is to go on the stage as a dancer under the name of "Dolloreuse," asserted that her husband had struck her and har abused her verbally often during her married life.

When she had finished, Shepard Bryan, representing Hudson, asked the jury to grant his client the right to remarry. He is a young business man, the lawyer said, and should be given a chance to make good. However, the jurymen, with Mrs. Hudson's story still fresh in their ears, refused the request.

FOUR INJURED WHEN FIREWORKS BLOW UP

(By Associated Press.)

THEATERS

(Criticisms of Local performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements."

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Vaudeville and Pictures.

The show at the Forsyth this week is worth while. Attendance was bigger on Tuesday than on Monday, and indications were that the record was going to be smashed on Wednesday.

There are more genuine hits on the bill than have been crowded into any seven-act program that has been offered in Atlanta this season. There is comedy; there is music—violin and piano; there are pretty girls, who put on boxing gloves and go smashing at each other, and then take to wrestling just like they meant it all.

One of the hits is the offering of Will Rooton's Athletic Girls—five of 'em, who are pretty, and who can fence and box and wrestle in an exviting fashion. Other hits have been credited to Travato, who plays a violin by eccentric methods; and to Johnny Burke, of the team of John and Mae Burke, who picks a piano to pieces.

Matinees are given every day, and evening performance are shown at 8:30 o'clock.

The Grand box office will open on Thursday morning for the advance sale of seats for the engagement of "Quo Vadis." That will commence with matinee on Monday and will continue all the week with daily matinee and evening performance.

"Quo Vadis" is to be shown on a stage as a photo play, but it is not an ordinary picture show. It will take two and a quarter hours to run off the 10,000 feet of film. There are eight reels containing three acts, with eight scenes. The picture has scored a hit in the Astor theater in New York, where it was shown for more than 100 consecutive performances; and its success at McVicker's, in Chicago, the Garrick, in Philadelphia, and in other large cities, has been great.

The Cines photo play producers in Rome, Italy, spent seventeen months and thousands of dollars, with a selected cast and the support of hundreds of supers, making this picture. It was brought to America by George Kleine, and Cohen and Harris; and Jake Wells has secured the picture for twelve weeks in the south.

There will be but one performance in the afternoon and at night.

The matinee prices are 25 cents for all seats. The night prices are 25 and 50 cents.

Wally Brooks, assisted by a company of exceptionally clever funmakers, singers and dancers, is delighting Bijou audiences this week in a mixture of melody and fun entitled. "Hiram at the Cabaret." The plot deals with the experiences of Hiram Greene, a country boy, who meets a lot of show people at his country home and afterward visits a New York cabaret on a roof garden and joins in the funmaking. The funny scenes that take place on the farm, in which Josiah Leman, a farmer, Sheriff Doolittle, in search of four cows, and other quaint rural characters, take part, keep the audience in an uproar of laughter. The second act, depicting life in the New York cabaret, is full of bright music, clever lines, good dancing and specialties, and the performance moves with a dash and vim that carries everything before it. "Hiram at the Cabaret" bids fair to draw the biggest audiences of the season to the Bijou. Matinees are given daily at 3 o'clock, except on Monday and Saturday, when two matinees are given at 2:30 and 4. Night shows are held at 7:30 and 9.

DR. MARION HULL HEADS SUNDAY SCHOOL LEADERS

Elected New President of Superintendents' Congress. Busy Summer Ahead

Dr. Marion McH. Hull, superintendent of the North Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school, became the new head of the Sunday School Superintendents' congress of Atlanta at the regular meeting of that congress Tuesday night. Also, the congress decided that instead of suspending sessions during the summer months, it will continue them regularly during the present summer. This decision is in line with the new activity which has begun to manifest itself among the Sunday schools of Atlanta.

Dr. Hull succeeds George Hinman, superintendent of St. Luke's Sunday school, as president of the congress. The meeting Tuesday night was held in the Wesley Memorial Sunday school, where the members of the congress enjoyd a delicious supper before they began their session.

John S. Spalding, superintendent of the Second Baptist Sunday school, was elected secretary of the congress.

The next meeting of the association will be held on July 15 in the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

Patrolman Discharged

J. C. Askew, a city patrolman, was discharged from the force by the board of police commissioners at the meeting Tuesday evening, when he was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. The dismissal of the patrolman was the only action out of the routine taken at the board meeting.

Tells Positive Cure For All Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause; that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment which was formerly known only to doctors will do the work. Don't waste time. Get it at once. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take something else instead. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

GOVERNOR IS PRESENTED WITH SILVER SERVICE

National Guard of State Thus Shows Its Esteem for Chief Executive

In token of the esteem in which they hold Governor Brown, some leading members of the National Guard of Georgia presented to him a beautiful solid silver service valued at $1,000, at the executive mansion Tuesday night.

The gift was a total surprise to the governor. At the time he was giving a reception to the graduating class of Georgia Tech, and although he was expecting some of his officers to drop in during the evening, he had no inkling of the surprise in store for him.

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, chief of staff, made the presentation speech, telling the governor just what a high regard the military of the state of Georgia had for him, and how it is the desire of all that some token of their love and respect for him should be shown in a material way. With which, the silver service was uncovered in an adjoining room.

The gift was paid for by voluntary subscriptions among members of the National Guard all over Georgia. Two hundred or more members of the state's military organization helped to buy it.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE CANNOT HASTEN A JURY

Court of Appeals Overrules Glascock Co. Justice Who Wanted to Catch Train

That a justice of the peace has no right to inform a jury that he is anxious to catch a train ni thirty minutes and, therefore, would like for them to reach a decision either one way or the other in the pending ase, is the substance of a rather unique deision handed down by the state court of appals.

It is in the case of Howard vs. Kitchens and comes from Glascock county. After the above finding, and in the discussion of the case, the court remarks that for a justice of the peace to charge a jury at all is superfluous and beyond his authority, since in a justice court it is the province of the jury to pass on both the facts and the law of the case.

In the case of Holliday vs. Coleman, which comes from the city court of Dublin, the court of appeals holds that the owner of land has a right to cut down telephone poles erected on his land without permission or process of law.

There are certain medicinal properties that follow the course of the blood stream and the influence of these properties is that of an antidote. This is why S. S. S., the best known blood purifier, has such a positive action in the skin. There is one ingredient in S. S. S. which peculiarly stimulates cellular or glandular activity to select from the blood or from this fine net work of blood vessels in the skin, those elements which it requires for regeneration.

Thus pimples, acne, eczema, lupus, or any other blood condition that attacks the skin or seeks an outlet through the skin is met with the antidotal effect of S. S. S.

This is why skin troubles vanish so readily and why they do not return.

Under the influence of S. S. S. this fine net work of blood vessels in the skin is constantly taking from the blood the nutrition required for healthy tissue and the cause of disease is just as constantly being removed, scattered and rendered harmless. These facts are more fully explained in a book on skin troubles sent by the Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. Get a bottle to-day and banish all skin afflictions.

T. B. FELDER ACCOUNTS FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED

Says Only $102 Was Paid Into Fund to Employ Burns Detectives

Attorney Thomas B. Felder Wednesday morning issued a card to the public in which he accounts for the funds subscribed to employ the Burns detectives to work upon the Phagan murder case. He reports that but $102 was collected.

Mr. Felder announces that all subscriptions paid in have been returned to the subscribers and that those who have subscribed but have not yet paid are not expected to do so. He submits a letter and detailed statement from C. N. Anderson, the treasurer of his law firm, in which it is stated that no expense incident to the employment of the Burns detectives have been charged to Mr. Felder's personal account.

In conclusion Mr. Felder says that his connection with the controversy is ended and that he will in due season, ask a committee from the bar association to pass upon the regularity of his employment in the Phagan case.

Following is Mr. Felder's card:

"To the Public:

"I beg to submit a statement of receipts and disbursements in connection with your contributions to the fund that it was proposed to raise for the employment of the Burns detectives to investigate the murder of Mary Phagan:

"First. I submit a letter addressed to me by Mr. C. N. Anderson.

"Second. A statement prepared by Mr. Anderson, showing all moneys received by my law firm.

"Third. Mr. Charles I. Ryan, who was designated as custodian of the fund, without his knowledge or consent, informs me that he has already returned to the contributors whatever money was paid in to him.

"Fourth. The Atlanta Journal subscribed $100, and I am informed that certain subscriptions were made to it. This subscription has not been paid in and is not expected, and the Constitution is hereby requested to return to the contributors any sums that it has received.

"Sixth. The Atlanta Georgian subscribed $100, and I am informed that certain subscriptions were made to it. This subscription has not been paid in and is not expected, and the Georgian is hereby requested to return to the contributors any sums that it has received.

HUNDREDS OF DOLLAR SUBSCRIBED.

"In addition to the above and foregoing, permit me to say in conclusion that additional sums aggregating several hundred dollars were subscribed by the public, but were not paid, and payment has not been and will not be requested.

"With the above and foregoing statement, I pledge the public not to trespass further upon their time and patience, as my connection with the controversy is ended. I will in due season ask a committee from the Bar association to pass upon the regularity of my employment in the Phagan case, and make its report, in accordance with the evidence.

"I request the newspapers in the city of Atlanta in the future to refrain from publishing any statement that can be by the public construed as a reflection upon me either as a lawyer or an individual.

"THOMAS B. FELDER."

MR. ANDERSON'S LETTER.

Mr. Anderson's letter to Mr. Felder, regarding the subscriptions, follows:

"Atlanta, Ga., June 9, 1913.

"Mr. T. B. Felder,

"Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Whitman, City.

"Dear Sir:

"In connection with the business of the above stated firm, of which I am a member, I occupy the position of treasurer. All letters addressed to the firm are placed upon my desk and are distributed by me, all moneys and checks paid in are turned over to me for appropriate disposition.

"I have received from contributions to the Burns fund $102. Several of the contributions were anonymously made; in the majority of the other cases contributors requested that their names be withheld, and in some cases the addresses of the parties making the contributions were unknown to me. Under your direction, I am returning to the contributors the several amounts contributed by them, where the names and addresses of the contributors are known, and I am directed by you to return the balance upon their request.

"I also desire to say that you have directed me to charge whatever disbursements have been made, which, by the way, are several items, no larger than the contributions that have come in, to your personal account. This I have done.

"I beg to remain,

A Bucharest dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says that if war occurs, Russia will mobilise her army but at present has no understanding with any of the allies.

The semi-official Mir at Sofia says the Servians want war, and that this being so, no middle course is open to Bulgaria, which must demand the immediate evacuation of the territories in the uncontested zone while awaiting the judgment of the arbitrators and must send to all parts of the disputed zones as many troops as the Servians have there.

A Belgrade dispatch says the Russian emperor has addressed telegrams to King Peter and King Ferdinand, imploring them to avoid a fratricidal war and expressing the hope that they will accept the intervention of arbitrators.

GENTRY SAYS DICTOGRAPH RECORD WAS TAMPERED WITH

should indicate this fact in the record, and not to put anything in the record not contained in his notes. He was informed repeatedly that he would be expected to swear to the accuracy of the record.

HOW AFFIDAVIT WAS MADE.

"After leaving The Journal office Gentry and I spent the balance of the night together. We ate breakfast together, after which Gentry went to his work at the General Fire Extinguisher company, and later in the morning I went to The Journal office and got the copy of the record that had been left there. I took this copy down to Gentry and he went before Charles S. Transou, a notary public, and made an affidavit attesting the accuracy of the contents of the record, no one being present but Gentry, Mr. Transou and myself.

"A short time later I took the record and accompanied by A. S. Colyar went before W. W. Brown, a notary public. Both Colyar and myself made affidavit as to the correctness of the record.

"The record covering the conversations between Mayor James G. Woodward, E. O. Miles, Colyar and myself was transcribed by Gentry at his office and on his own typewriter. I was present but a part of the time while he was doing so. This record, like that between T. B. Felder, A. S. Colyar and myself, was sworn to by Gentry before Charles S. Transou and Colyar and I attested it before W. W. Brown.

"To the best of my recollection and knowledge Gentry transcribed the record covering the conversation between C. C. Jones, Jr., and A. S. Colyar on the day he transcribed the record of the conversation between Mayor Woodward, E. O. Miles, A. S. Colyar and myself.

"The records as published in The Atlanta Journal, to the best of my knowledge and belief, are identical with those of the records Gentry himself transcribed, swore to and turned over to me."

GENTRY'S LATEST AFFIDAVIT.

Following is a copy of the Gentry affidavit furnished Mayor Woodward by E. O. Miles:

"District of Columbia, City of Washington—Personally appeared before me, the undersigned, a notary public of the District of Columbia, George M. Gentry, who, on oath, states that:

"On the Wednesday, May 21, 1913, at or about 10 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Guy C. Febuary called me over the telephone and desired to know if I would do some stenographic work for him. I told him I would, but that I couldn't get down there for a while. He said that they were in a hurry for it and he would like for me to come at once, so I arranged to get off and went down to his office, and the chief told me he wanted me to take down some testimony, and he asked me if I could write very fast. Mr. Febuary assisted Chief Lanford that I was a good stenographer and could do the work all right. The chief then informed me that they work he wanted done required somebody that could be trusted all right, and I assured him that I always treated all stenographic work that I did as confidential. Chief Lanford told me then that what he wanted me to do was to take down a conversation that they would place in a hotel, and he asked me if I thought I could take it over a dictophone. (Mr. Surles coming in at that time with a satchel, which he opened and which contained wires and other paraphernalia in connection with a dictograph outfit.)

"After a few minutes, during which time Mr. Febuary was absent, we went over to the Williams house, No. 2, on North Forsyth street, Fulton county, Georgia (Mr. Febuary and I), and I was instructed to go into Room No. 21 on the third floor. Mr. Febuary and Mr. Colyar were there, and they probably had to make arrangements for adjoining rooms. Mr. Surles commenced to me that they hadn't decided just what to do with the dictographs. After a time Colyar came in and instructed Surles to follow him, and gave me his instructions to await his wishes. Later on Mr. Febuary came in, and I told him that if I was to stay much longer by myself I was going back to the office.

SAW DICTOGRAPHS INSTALLED.

"I was then allowed to come into the room, where they were installing the dictographs (one on each end of the bottom board of the bureau just under the bottom drawer in the back of the board), and the wires being run through the keyhole of the door between Room 21 and Room 23. The bureau was then screwed against the door to keep it. At about 12:30 I started getting accustomed to Febuary's and Colyar's voices.

"At first I could not hear at all, but gradually I was able to hear more distinctly and after an hour or two of diligent practice I was able to use the dictograph and to distinguish voices very clearly. Right at the beginning I found that I would not be able to hear anything with the windows up. When they were closed it became rather stuffy and this, coupled with the strain I was under, added to my distraction. I stopped particing at 2:45 that afternoon and went downstairs to the office of the hotel, where I awaited Mr. Felder's arrival.

SAW FELDER ARRIVE.

"I saw him cross Forsyth street, and after he, Febuary and Colyar went upstairs, or were just about at the top of the stairs, I started up and saw the three enter room 21 of the Williams house, located as mentioned previously. I then immediately went into room 22 and closed the door, partly, but did not lock it. The windows were down and so I went directly to the table and placed the receiver over my head and started writing what I heard. I took down all the conferences that took place. At somewhere around 5 that afternoon I left the hotel and went to Mr. R. I. Biles' house and took some dictation. From there I went home and changed my collar. I returned to the office of the General Fire Extinguisher company, 276 Marietta street, where I wrote the dictation he had given me, signed his letters and then met Mr. Febuary there at the office. We went to the Candler restaurant to supper and from there we returned to the Williams house to keep an appointment with Colyar at about 7:30. At about 8 o'clock Mr. Miles and Mr. C. C. Jones, Jr., Colyar went up to the 'conference room' and Mr. Febuary and I to the 'information reception room.'

"I placed the receiver over my head, and in order to be sure that I would hear everything Mr. Febuary stood behind me and held them pressed tightly to my ears. This conference lasted about thirty minutes. Between 8:30 and 9:15 Wednesday night Mr. Febuary loafed about town, as we had an appointment with Mr. Branch and Mr. Paschal at 9:30 at the Williams house, and as they were not in The Journal office, we had to kill time until they showed up. I left Mr. Febuary and Mr. Colyar at The Journal office at 9:15 and went over to the Williams house to wait for the arrival of The Journal reporters mentioned above. They came in shortly and we went over to The Journal office, up to Colyar's office. Febuary, Branch, Paschal and myself went up to the editorial department, where the records were selected and I then went to work transcribing what I had heard.

SAYS CHANGES WERE MADE.

"Right at the start I made Colyar angry because when I did not hear what was said I put dashes and so I allowed him to dictate several answers and questions, which do not appear in my notebook and which I am not positive that I heard. I did not hear Mayor Woodward mention Chief Beavers or Chief Lanford during the whole conversation, nor did I write it in the transcription of my notes, these names being evidently added by other parties. At 4:30 Thursday morning, May 22, I finished transcribing my notes and turned the record over to Mr. Febuary. Later on during the morning he came down to the office, bringing an affidavit which I had written for me to sign before a notary public. He told me that they had made only a few minor changes in the transcription, and that all I had to do was to sign the affidavit which I did. However, I noticed that some interlineations had been made in my copy, particularly in Chief Lanford's copy, as I had no copy.

Colyar and the reporters, just before I started transcribing my notes, argued as to the number of copies that should be made. They agreed that one copy should be made for the chief, one for myself and one for The Journal, and that no more should be made. This kept me from having a copy. I had my notebook, however, and it was the comparison of my notes with the published articles that lead to my discovery that in addition to the several answers and questions which Colyar had personally dictated, other changes had been made, namely the insertion of the names of Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford, in the conference with Mayor Woodward, also many other variations occurred, changing the sense of the statement, and since they had my affidavit attached to the paper I felt that I had been duped.

"As to the remuneration of my services, will say that The Journal reporters, Branch and Paschal, agreed to pay me $5 to get the work written Wednesday night, so it could be published in The Journal's paper Saturday morning, after the appearance of the article in Friday's Journal. The Georgian's reporter came to the office and offered me either $5 or $6, I do not recollect which, for a copy of the conference with Mayor Woodward, Febuary, Miles and Colyar, and Miles, Jones and Colyar's conference. I declined the offer. I then went to see The Journal's reporters and told them that The Georgian had offered me money for a copy of the conference, and they agreed to pay me $5 to hold my notebook from Saturday until Monday. I turned my notebook over to Mr. Brice, who gave it to his stenographer to keep until Monday, and upon calling the reporters told me that The Georgian had gotten a copy, and so I was too late.

LOCKED UP NOTEBOOK.

"I then called on Mr. Brice's office and asked Miss M——, Mr. Brice's stenographer, for my notebook, and I took it home and locked it up. Monday, when I went up to see Major Cohen about the $50 he went down to look for Mr. Brice, whom he was unable to find. Later we went back, upstairs together and Branch and Paschal explained to him their promise to pay me $50 for attending the conference in the Fulton book. However some argument arose over the fact that I took my notebook out of the stenographer's office, and they each told them that they had agreed to give me $50 not to make a copy for The Georgian, and that I had not made the copy for The Georgian, and had, therefore, carried out my part of the compact. They then told me to come back later on and see Mr. Brice about it. I returned after awhile, I believe it was around 1 o'clock, and Mr. Brice paid me the amount in currency and took my receipt.

"Chief Lanford has not as yet paid me for my services, from the fact that I have not rendered a bill.

"Saturday morning, before the publication of the Woodward conference, held at 9 o'clock Wednesday, May 21, as previously mentioned, and the Jones conference, held at 8 o'clock the same night, I went to the editorial department of The Journal and requested a proof of what they were going to print. Colyar, who was in the editorial department at the time, refused to have a proof, and so I left The Journal building, suspicious.

"Saturday afternoon I went down to the office, carrying with me my original notebook, and a copy of Friday's and Saturday's Journal. I compared them all the way through and upon seeing the many variations in what was printed and what I had in my notes, I realized that my transcriptions had been tampered with, and that I had just cause for the suspicions which were aroused by their refusal to allow me to read the proofs Saturday morning.

BECOMES VERY NERVOUS.

"Having signed the affidavits, at Mr. Febuary's request, in which I swore to what I had heard, and seeing something entirely different published, I became very nervous and uneasy. Saturday night when I went home, a reporter called me and said he was one of The Journal reporters and wanted to see me a few minutes. I told him to come over. He came in and introduced himself to me as Mr. Starr, The Journal. My mother and aunt recognized his voice as that of a reporter who had called shortly before I came home, and said he was from The Georgian. They both rushed into the sitting room and told me that he was not with The Journal, but was the same fellow that came a few minutes ago, and said he was from The Georgian. He denied that he had said he was from The Journal, although he had told both myself and my grandfather, who went to answer the door bell, that he was from The Journal. Just before he left he informed me that a warrant had been sworn out for Febuary's, Colyar's and my arrest, and upon my directing him as to where the door out could be found, he departed, saying that he had got the information he wanted.

"Sunday afternoon, at the office, someone called me up and informed me that I would probably be arrested Monday. I did not recognize the voice, and so am unable to say who it was. They also informed me that I would have to make bond in order to be released. I asked who it was, and they hung up or were cut off.

BROTHER HAS NOTEBOOK.

"Monday morning Colyar requested that I turn my notebook over to The Journal and said he would give me $5 if I would show him a receipt from The Journal for the notebook. I came near allowing The Journal to have the notebook, but instead gave it to my brother to take home and instructed him to allow no one to see it.

"Developments later showed me the character of some of the people connected with the transcription and it made me so ashamed of my connection with it that I was afraid I could not face the humiliation that I thought would naturally ensue, and also the fact that they had changed my transcription showed to me very clearly that I was mixed up with a bunch of crooks.

"I am prepared to read my notes whenever it becomes necessary. These notes will show exactly what I heard.

"The foregoing affidavit is made by me voluntarily, unsolicited, and no money or the promise of any remuneration whatever was offered to me for making it, my sole motive being to give the straight history of my connection with the now 'infamous' dictograph affair.

"GEORGE M. GENTRY.

"JEANNETTE HENNING, Notary Public, District of Columbia."

Lanford Declares He Does Not Know About Any Changes

Detective Chief N. A. Lanford Wednesday morning declared that he knew absolutely nothing concerning the alleged tampering with the dictograph records.

"The records were typewritten and sworn to when they were brought to me," said the chief. "I still have them in my possession and no changes have been made in them since they were turned over to me. Personally, I do not believe that they were ever tampered with or doctored according to Gentry's latest affidavit he still has his notes. It would be quite a simple matter for him to take these notes and point out the changes. All I want is the truth about this affair.

Chief Lanford, upon reading the alleged affidavit, drew the following telegram to police Chief James L. Beavers, who is in Washington attending the convention of the National Police Chiefs association:

"Atlanta, Ga., June 11, 1913.

"J. L. Beavers,

"Care Convention Chiefs Police,

"Washington, D. C.

"I understand that George M. Gentry is in Washington and has made affidavit before Jeannette Henning, notary public, District of Columbia, to the effect that his notes made in behalf of Colyar and Felder matter were padded. Please have him located and ascertain if this is true and if so under what conditions this affidavit was made, and advise.

"N. A. LANFORD,

"Chief of Detectives."

'My Vindication Complete,' Declares Thomas B. Felder

Thomas B. Felder, commenting upon the affidavit of George M. Gentry says:

"Gentry's affidavit is a complete vindication. It bears out my statement that the whole thing was a frame-up on the part of Newport Lanford and his hirelings. Everyone agrees with me now that I was the innocent victim of a dirty, contemptible plot.

"The notebook is not in the hands of Gentry's brother. It was at the time he left Atlanta, but is now in a safe deposit vault and I have the key.

"I have given Mayor Woodward a copy of the affidavit, and I expect he will ask the grand jury to look into the matter.

"So far as I am personally concerned, the incident is closed with this vindication. Gentry will return to Atlanta within the next week or ten days, and he may have something additional to say."

Says Police Board Ought to Investigate

Other than to say the police board ought to make a thorough investigation of the detective department, Mayor Woodward Wednesday morning made no statement in reference to the Gentry affidavit.

"This young man's affidavit certainly is enough to convince me that Lanford and his aggregation of so-called detectives are not very careful as to the methods they employ, to say the least of it," said the mayor. "It is time for the police board to give the detective department a thorough airing, and I'm not so sure but what the city would be money ahead if the entire detective crew were kicked out and new ones elected. We certainly couldn't get much worse than we've got now."

It was the mayor's first intention Wednesday to give out a written statement in reference to the Gentry affidavit, but later he changed his mind. In this connection he said:

"There was nothing in the dictograph record, even as the detectives gave it out, that worried me. There was nothing in it that I was ashamed of, or cared to explain.

"The Gentry affidavit was not gotten at my instigation. I cared nothing about the affidavit, and knew nothing about it until it was handed to me by Ed Miles about 9 o'clock Tuesday night."

Miles Will Not Divulge Young Gentry's Address

E. O. Miles, the private detective who figured in the dictograph conversations and who brought back from Washington the alleged affidavit from Gentry charging that the dictograph records had been padded, refuses to tell whether Gentry can be found. He will not say whether he is withholding this information at Gentry's request.

Mr. Miles says he went to Washington after the affidavit in the interest of those who had been dictographed. Further than this he would not talk.

W. P. FAIN INDICTED BY GRAND JURY; TWO BILLS

Police Commissioner Indicted With M. T. Cantrell for Misdemeanor

W. P. Fain, member of the board of police commissioners of Atlanta, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on two counts at its session on Tuesday.

In one of the bills Mr. Fain is indicted jointly with M. T. Cantrell, of the firm of Cantrell & McHugh, tailors, for a misdemeanor, the indictment charging that they maintained a disorderly house. It is said that this bill was brought under section 383 of the criminal code, which says that any one maintaining either by himself or others a house where idleness, drinking, gaming or other disorder is encouraged to the annoyance of the neighborhood, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The second indictment charges assault and battery, the grand jury alleging that Mr. Fain assaulted a woman whose name is unknown to the jury.

The address of Mr. Cantrell is given as 40 East Harris street, the address of the establishment of Mr. Fain is said to have been when neighbors complained to the police of his conduct.

The bills against Mr. Fain and Mr. Cantrell were the only indictments out of the ordinary made when court at Tuesday's session of the grand jury. There was no action on the bill charging Thomas B. Felder with carrying concealed weapons.

Dr. Horace Grant, sought at the grand jury's direction while it was engaged with the Felder investigation Tuesday, declared Wednesday morning that the impression created thereby was entirely erroneous. He exhibited a scuffed jury "John Doe" summons directing him to appear on Thursday, June 12. "I was not summoned to appear Tuesday," said he, "and I did not know the grand jury wanted to hear from me then until I read it in the papers."

Mr. Fain appeared at the sheriff's office Wednesday morning with six friends who signed his bond of $800, $200 for the assault and battery charge and $500 for the charge of conducting a common house.

The man who went on Fain's bond are: A. R. King, Carlos Mason, B. Lee Smith, W. A. Vernoy, C. R. Garner and J. N. McEachern.

M. T. Cantrell, jointly indicted with Mr. Fain on the charge of conducting a common house, came to the sheriff's office at noon and made bond in the sum of $500. His bond was signed by Dr. A. J. Bragg. The bonds of both were approved by Deputy Sheriff John Owens.

Commissioner Fain gave out the following statement:

"As it is known by every one familiar with the procedure of the courts it is comparatively easy to secure an indictment before the grand jury, as they only hear one side of the case.

"I have no apprehension as to the outcome of the trial as I know I can prove my innocence beyond question o fa doubt. All that I ask is a speedy trial and that the public suspend judgment until the facts are known."

SENATE BEGINS TO PROBE WINE WAR IN WEST VIRGINIA

been unable to act, there weer courts outside of the district zone which were clothed with ample jurisdiction to try all of the cases arising from the strike disorders.

In the midst of the groups of lawyers representing the miners, headed by Frank S. Monnett, former attorney general of Ohio, sat a gray haired, stout old woman with sparkling, grey eyes, snapping from beneath heavy brows, who watched every witness with intent gaze. She was "Mother" Jones, leader of the striking miners, but lately come from the "Bull pen" of the military court, and she directed the questioning of the lawyers.

"Mother" Jones herself will be called as one of the witnesses of the miners later in the investigation.

The committee planned today to make a trip into the strike territory to see conditions for itself. A special train will be taken from Charleston through the Paint and Cabin Creek coal fields. Senator Swanson believes that one day's work in the mining district will give the committee all the "local color" it needs.

The documents produced by General Elliott showed fifty-one men sentenced by the military court. Robert Hartigan, a mine guard, charged with doing police duty as a non-resident of the state, was sentenced to three years according to the list, each time to pay a fine of $500 and to serve six months in prison. In another similar case a guard was fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days. Among other sentences shown were: For "intimidation of workmen," 32 prisoners, six months each.

The list accounted for all but two cases under the first martial law period. These two cases were marked "missing from the files."

General Elliott said orders restoring martial law last February were modified by Governor Hatfield annulling that portion of the proclamation which placed the military above civil authorities.

The militia, the witness said, was now working under the civil courts.

"While you were in charge of the martial law zone you made arrests on your own responsibility, without a writ or warrant from any civil court?" asked Senator Borah.

"Yes," said General Elliott.

General Elliott said that he had no record of the proceedings of the military courts established under the second and third declarations of martial law. He said that at one time he had practically the entire militia organization of the state in the field.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Reid for the miners, General Elliott said the controversy prior to the declaration of martial law was solely between the miners and operators.

"Was there any state of insurrection in the strike zone prior to the declaration of martial law?" asked Mr. Belcher.

"Not evidently. I thought there was," said the witness.

General Elliott said he knew Representative S. B. Avis, former prosecutor, had told Governor Glasscock that he could not get action in the courts to subdue the riotous conditions. This, he said, was one of the reasons the governor declared martial law.

The witness said his troops had captured five machine guns in the affected district.

General Elliott told of the operation of an armored train on which a machine gun was mounted, which made four trips up Paint and Cabin creeks. He could not say who manned this train.

Attorney Reid asked for a description of what rifles were carried on a special train that invaded the Paint creek section on the night of February 7, and from which a battle was fought. General Elliott did not know where the guns came from.

during the present week only the matters presented to it by the solicitor.

Relative to the Conley matter itself, the grand jury foreman said that it was a criminal case of the first magnitude and could only be acted upon by the grand jury when presented to it by the solicitor.

As to whether or not the grand jury would take the matter up of its own initiative next week, Mr. Beck would make no statement.

MR. ROSSER'S POSITION.

Relative to the lack of grand jury action on the Conley case Mr. Rosser, in his first statement since the Phagan investigation commenced, said:

"No one has been rude enough to bring this negro before the grand jury, nor, indeed, to make any charge against him.

"After the statement of this negro and in view of all the evidence which so strongly points to him as the slayer of little Mary Phagan, is the grand jury to sit idly by and allow charge or investigation to be smothered in Lanford until Frank's trial?

"Or is it the purpose to keep the negro's case from the grand jury in the nature of an offered reward to spur him on to swear his worst against the white man?

"Would it not be just and decent to bring this negro's case before the grand jury and let him, under oath, make confession, so that it can then decide whether the negro should then be indicted?"

ATTACK ON HOTEL MET BY EMPHATIC DENIALS

Part-Owner, Lessee and Manager of Empire Call It "Vicious Salnder"

The following signed statements, which explain themselves clearly, are published herewith by request:

"Editor The Atlanta Journal.

"Atlanta, Ga.:

"Dear Sir—Attacks upon myself personally are immaterial.

"They were expected. Others will be made. But protected vice cannot revive itself in Atlanta by slandering me or any other individual. I am only one of a committee, which committee represents 90 per cent of, if not all of, the Protestant churches of Atlanta.

"Therefore, if the attacks injured only me, I should ignore them.

"But when these attacks hit and hurt not me, but innocent third parties, as is known to those who make the attacks, the public should be informed.

"John Edmondson is known in Atlanta and throughout the state of Georgia. He needs no defense from me, as his friends and acquaintances know that he would not operate a questionable house. The Hotel Empire, in the Jackson building, was leased to him a year or more ago for a period of five years.

"Whether or not Mr. Edmondson makes money from his lease he has to pay the rent, for the simple reason that he is financially responsible, independent of his connection with this hotel. Therefore, on strictly business principles, temporarily it is immaterial to the owners of the building whether or not he makes money from the hotel.

AN INJUSTICE DONE.

"At present he is losing money through no fault of his, but through attacks of members of the underworld and its defenders made upon me personally. The continued slanders deter decent people from going to the hotel. The other kind do not frequent it for two reasons:

"First, Edmondson will not tolerate it.

"The second is that I have requested the chief of police, if anything is wrong in the Jackson building, to 'pull it' before any other place.

"At the outset of the campaign against protected vice I made this request of Chief Beavers in the presence of several newspaper men. I repeat the request today.

"Furthermore, I have asked individuals, and I now ask them and all others, regardless of their motives, to have the 'Hotel Empire' 'pulled' if there is anything wrong with it. I will gladly pay the fee of any lawyer who will convict any bell-boy, clerk or proprietor in the place of sanctioning any immorality. And I shall consider the showing up of the place not as an attack upon me, but as a personal favor.

"What is more, Mr. Edmondson will consider it as a favor.

"The Jackson building is owned by five persons, the heirs of my father's estate. These also will thank the individual that puts an end to anything wrong upon their property.

"And in future the public will appraise at their proper value the men who, in seeking to discredit a work of the churches of Atlanta, make attacks upon me which do not hurt me but injure others who have done them no harm.

"I have only pity for the blindness of these men and their tools.

"Respectfully,

(Signed)

"MARION M. JACKSON."

MR. EDMONDSON'S CARD.

"Atlanta, Ga., June 10, 1913.

"My attention has just been called to an article in one of Sunday's papers wherein Carl Hutcheson states in substance that Mr. Marion Jackson is a party to the keeping of a disreputable house in the Empire hotel in the city of Atlanta.

"I beg to state that I have leased from the Jackson estate, of which Mr. Marion Jackson is one of the heirs, a hotel known as the Empire hotel in the city of Atlanta, having been in possession of the same since August, 1912, and that any imputation that this hotel has not been conducted in a proper manner is slanderous and untrue.

"If Mr. Hutcheson can establish that one of my clerks has ever greeted a lady who was about to register, with the language, 'With or without,' I will give him $1,000, and if he cannot establish this, if there is any manly instinct in him he will at once make a public apology, withdrawing this language or and reflection since my management of the hotel.

"For the benefit of the public I wish to state that I am conducting the Empire hotel in a first-class manner and catering to the best trade, and that no vice of any character is permitted in that hotel with my knowledge, and if the same was going on I believe I would know of it.

"It is unfair to me to be drawn into the unfortunate controversy that is now being conducted through the public press, and my hotel be made to suffer on account of the infamous charges about its management, simply because Mr. Marion Jackson happens to be one of the heirs at law owning the hotel.

(Signed)

"J. L. EDMONDSON."

THE MANAGER'S CARD.

"Atlanta, Ga., June 10, 1913.

"Occupying the position of general manager of the Empire hotel from October 27, 1912, to April 27, 1913, when I became connected with the Hotel Ansley, in Atlanta, I beg to state that while at the Empire hotel I did not countenance or allow any improper persons to stop at said hotel, and when I discovered, which I occasionally did, that suspicious persons were trying to take an advantage of the hotel I at once ordered them to leave.

"I received positive instructions from John Edmondson not to allow vice of any kind to exist in the hotel, and enforced these instructions to the letter, and so long as I was general manager of the Empire hotel I feel sure that no hotel in Atlanta or in the country was more cleanly conducted or freer from vice.

"There is not a word of truth in the charges made by Carl Hutcheson in one of last Sunday's papers, if his allusions referred to the Empire hotel as the hotel owned by Marion Jackson, since and during my management of said hotel, and such a publication as he made concerning said hotel is a vile and infamous slander.

Had Serious Lung Trouble---Now Well

It is surprising that there exists much skepticism as to the possibility of a person recovering from severe Lung Trouble when there are so many reports of complete recoveries brought about through the use of Eckman's Alterative. This is a remedy for the throat and lungs which should be investigated by every sufferer. Read of this case:

1619 Susquehanna Ave., Phila, Pa.

"My Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and in February of 1902 I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1902, that I started taking Eckman's Alterative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced well. Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneumonia, and I have resorted to no other medicine to effect a recovery. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. ANTI-TRUST SUIT FILED AGAINST QUAKER OATS

Government Charges Quaker People With Controlling Oatmeal Products

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 11.—The Quaker Oats company—the so-called oatmeal trust, controlling 90 per cent of the oatmeal products and byproducts of the country—was attacked by the federal court in a civil suit filed here today, charging a monopoly in "derogation of the common rights of the people of the United States," and in violation of the Sherman law.

WILL GO TO COURT FOR SON, SAYS J. M. PARKER

Upon his return from Birmingham, Ala., where he found his little four-year-old son, James L. Parker, in the custody of Mrs. Palmer, who acknowledged having taken him away from their home at 102 Jett street about a month ago, J. M. Parker declared to a Journal reporter that he would return to the Alabama city in a short while and institute habeas corpus proceedings against the woman in an effort to bring the child back to Atlanta with him.

It was through The Journal that little James was found. His picture, with that of his father, was published in the paper at the time of the child's sensational disappearance. Friends in Birmingham saw it and immediately communicated with Mr. Parker when they had located the boy in the country just outside of Birmingham.

The father went for him Saturday, determined to bring his child back, but his wife, he declares, refused to give him up. "The poor little fellow cried for me," said Mr. Parker, "and I am determined to have him.

"His mother acknowledged that it is her intention to keep him. But I am going to have him back. She told me when I filed my suit for divorce that she would not take him away from me."

On May 7, the day on which Mr. Parker filed suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Parker is alleged to have gone to the home on Jett street and spirited her son away in a machine before his aunt and other members of the family realized what had happened.

RESCUES COW-GIRL AND DISCOVERS HIS WIFE

"Buffalo Bill parades end in lovers' meetings."

If you don't believe it ask Mr. and Mrs. John R. Edwards, who separated fifteen months ago in Boston and were reunited in Atlanta Monday by a dramatic meeting in the middle of Peachtree street.

The story goes that following the separation Edwards went to NiNcaragua, espoused the cause of the Revolutionists, fought through a dozen or so battles, was wounded, and came home with a corporal's chevrons. His wife in the meantime made use of her Boston experience to get a job as "cow-girl" with the wild west show.

When the parade filed down Peachtree street Monday, Mrs. Edwards' saddle-girth happened to slip, she happened to fall, a man from the sidewalk happened to rush to her assistance and he happened to be Mr. Edwards. He caught her in his arms and exclaimed "It's Agnes!"

It was Agnes, it seems, and the attractions of Nicaragua and the lure of the big canvas were both forgotten in the joyful reunion which followed. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will make their future home in Atlanta, where he is a stone-cutter.

A Sale of Oriental China

One That Will Be Long Remembered by Those Who Share its Remarkable Values

Lovers of these quaint and beautiful and colorful wares that typify the Orient have in this sale an opportunity that undoubtedly beggars comparison with any sale Atlanta has ever known.

Prices are not halved, they are not even cut into thirds, they are fractioned to smaller fractions than halves and thirds represent. However, you may easily see the price-treatment below.

But the china. You will never see why it has been so priced. It is that richly decorated ware of fine quality that every housekeeper would own, and in such a variety that the selection of complete sets will be an easy matter.

It is a clearaway with us. We have disregarded the beauty of the china and, as is customary with Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., made prices that will indeed clear the china away.

The sale begins with the opening of the store and the sooner thereafter you arrive the greater the variety will be.

Misses' and Children's Coats In a Sale

Junior Department, Third Floor

The weather of the past few days argues strongly the necessity of a light-weight coat, even when we are "knee deep in June."

Values to $6.50 At $3.75

Children's Coats in sizes six to fourteen years. Splendid choice here, the variety of styles and colors is about as great as you would have it—they are very pretty little affairs in red, navy and mixture weaves.

And beside these are all the finer coats for children now half price, which brings the price range to $5.00 to $7.50 instead of from $10.00 to $15.00.

$1.50 For Boys' $2.25 to $2.50 Suits

$2.50

Hats That Were $12.50 to $25.00

$5.00

Of those that are now $2.50 there are forty-nine, they remain, the greater part of them, from a recent sale in which they were $5.00. Of those that are now $5.00 there are thirty-five now reduced for the first time.

There are hemps, milans and Belgian splits and Neopolitans in about as many shapes as there are hats, the trimmings are wings, feathers, ribbons, flowers, malines. There are a few white and light tan hats among those at $5.00; as a rule, however, they are in reds, blues, greens and browns---hats that travelers will want, hats for wear with coat suits.

And how quickly they should go! The prices are but nominal figures in no way representative of worth. But it is the final clearance and so---$2.50 and $5.00.

Extortionate School-Book Prices.

There is cheering evidence that the patrons and teachers of Georgia's common schools are becoming duly exercised over the exorbitant prices they pay for text books. And well they may when, as Representative C. R. McCrory has shown, the people of this State are charged approximately two hundred per cent more than are those of Ontario, Canada, for the same grade of school books, despite the fact that the cost of production is about the same in both places.

In a communication from Prof. H. S. Bowden, superintendent of the Blakely public schools, printed elsewhere on this page, appears an interesting suggestion as to how we may escape the tremendous tax which we now pay to special interests. He refers to two texts on civil government. One of them, published, as he says, by a book trust and specified for use in the schools under a State contract, sells for fifty-four cents. The other, which is local in its treatment of the subject, is written by a Georgia author, printed in a Georgia shop and sells for only twenty-five cents. The Georgia book, says Prof. Bowden, is in every respect far superior to the other; and he pertinently adds: "If a big profit must be made on school books, let the State make it, in order to settle the school indebtedness, and not foreign corporations as at present."

A similar plan has been suggested by Representative McCrory, who proposes that a system be devised whereby the State itself may supervise or edit the composition of its common school texts and have them printed by competitive bids. Certain it is that the Legislature should give this matter serious attention. There is no justice or reason in our people being compelled to pay millions of dollars as tribute to book trusts. The fact that this tax is levied by dollars or half-dollars or quarters makes no difference in its extortionate total. These sums, though relatively small within themselves, come out of the earnings of thousands of familes who can ill afford to give them up. And even though we disregard the hardships which they entail upon individuals, we must face the important truth that it is the State's duty to make the best possible business contract for the people whose interests it represents.

Let the citizens, and particularly the school patrons and teachers, in every county bring this *matter directly to the attention of their representa*tives in the General Assembly and insist that at the forthcoming session some measure be adopted that will assure the Georgia public fair play in the prices of school books.

The supreme court has a pretty good idea about the rights of states.

The smoke inspector has decided that it must be longer between smokes.

The return of warm weather will remove an interesting conversational topic.

The Way to Penal Reform.

Thoughtful public opinion naturally approves the proposal that a legislative commission be created at the forthcoming session of the General Assembly to study the penal system of Georgia and recommend such improvements as may be necessary or advisable. That the present system may be changed in some respects decidedly for the better no one familiar with its practical workings can deny. Indeed, those who are in closest touch with these matters and who are officially responsible are among the most earnest advocates of a thoroughgoing plan of readjustment; witness the recent interview with Judge T. E. Patterson, of Griffin, a member of the State Prison Board.

"While we are seeking,' said he, "to conduct the penitentiary system in the best manner possible under the present laws, we realize, at least I do, that the system is far from perfect. It has its good points but it has also its defects; and I am confident that a properly constituted commission, given sufficient authority in the matter of securing evidence and information, could point out these defects and suggest the most efficient remedies, possibly in the shape of amendments to the present laws or, where necessary, supplementary laws which would commend themselves to the Legislature and the public."

The purpose of such a commission would in no wise be that of pell-mell muckrakers; on the contrary its object would be a deliberate investigation of the methods now employed with a view to making them more efficient, if possible, but not to introducing changes merely for the sake of change; and also a study of the systems that have worked most satisfactorily in other progressive States to the end that Georgia may profit by all such experience and work out a system of her own that will meet the ends of justice, humanity and common sense.

Especially praiseworthy is the suggestion that courts be given discretionary power, within properly defined limits, to suspend sentences in cases where such a course would not be harmful to the interests of society but would be distinctly wholesome for the offender. It would frequently happen in the case of young prisoners or in the case of those who had erred through impulse or in unusual circumstances that a plan like this would serve all the purposes of justice and at the same time save the individual from a life of crime.

The thing of prime importance, however, is the appointment of such a commission as has been proposed, in order that all phases of the State's penal system may be studied carefully and all suggestions given due consideraton. That is the broad, practical way which everyone sincerely interested in improving the penal systef can follow.

President Wilson has done so much in three months or so, what couldn't he accomplish in a whole term?

It was a great reception that novelty, the sun, received on his return today.

Nearly every widow believes that all the married women of her acquaintance would like to exchange places with her.

The Georgia Tech.

In celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of its founding, the Georgia School of Technology has the cordial interest and congratulation of all good citizens. No institution has contributed more to this States upbuilding. Few have grown so vigorously. *None has rendered a richer return upon its appro*priations or established a sounder title to generous support.

Since its establishment a quarter of a century ago, the Georgia Tech has progressed from a school that was comparatively small and limited in its influence to one that commands the entire country's admiration. It has equipped hundreds of young men for leadership and for lives productive of great practical good, not only instructing them in useful arts but also inspiring them with the ideal of public service. The fact that Georgia's resources are being developed more rapidly and more profitably today than twenty-five years ago, the fact that her towns have taken on new energy and that her industries are more thriving and numerous, the fact that capital finds a readier path and a surer promise is due very largely to the faithful, efficient work of this constructive institution.

It must be said, however, that the growth and the achievements of the Georgia Tech are not to be credited to the support of our State government. Had the Tech been solely dependent upon the appropriations it has received from the State, it could never have attained its present usefulness or prestige. It has prospered largely because of the earnestness and efficiency of the men behind it and largely by means of liberal gifts from individuals, in Georgia and elsewhere, who were interested in the cause of education. It has had the public's confidence and enthusiasm, but it has not had anything like due support from the State government.

The time has come when the Legislature must awaken to the merits and the needs of this institution that means so much to the people of Georgia. It is to be hoped that the spirit which breathes through the impressive series of events now in progress at the Tech will make itself felt among all the members of the General Assembly soon to convene and will result in fairer appropriations to a cause in which Georgia's progress is so vitally concerned.

Either take things as they come or turn your back and let them go.

Progress of Irish Home Rule.

In the second passage of the Irish Home Rule bill in the House of Commons brings that interesting measure and the great cause it represents to the borderland of success. If the bill passes the Commons once more during the tenure of the present Parliament, it will automatically become a law, regardless of the opposition of the House of Lords.

Whether the Liberal majority will be able to retain its power until a third and final vote can be had is another and a more serious question. Dispatches indicate that the Irish Nationalists are rather downhearted over this particular phase of the outlook, and certain it is that the fortunes of the Liberal party are just now at ebb. The Marconi scandal has involved high government officials and, though this is a matter that has little or no logical bearing on political issues, it will be worked for all it is worth by the opposition. Should the Liberals be retired from Power, the Home Rule bill would be lots, at least for years to come.

That, however, is is no wise a certainty nor even a very strong probability. On the larger issues of the time, the Liberals seem to hav the rank and file of the people with them; and they may weather the present storm as they have many others within the past few years.

High living never qualifies one for the higher life.

The ancients believed that the world was square —but that was before politics was discovered.

THE SERPENT'S STING.
(From "A Garland of Poems," by Samuel M. Baum.)

Outstretched on the grass, in the sun's shining rays,
In the midst of the garden the serpent lays;
Its beautiful body, with stripes of gold,
Contains the strength of a lion bold.

No one would think it so wicked and mean,
As they gazed on its lovely head of green;
It is the most cunning of all its race,
And accomplishes its purpose with silent grace.

Like Eve of old, this creature of prey
Will entice you to come its way;
It leads you to here you hear it hiss,
Silently wondering what it is.

Because you admired its beauty and charming so bold,
It took advantage of you, as it did in days of old;
You fell a victim to its prey for admiration's sake,
And it in return rebelled you, and tried your life to take.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

June 6.—To my office and hastening through my stint to go to the great tennis matches and saw there the great player Mr. McLoughlin trounce Mr. Rice, who is come all the way from New South Wales, and saw Mr. Williams beat Mr. Doust, another Australian, and seeing these champions play did both dispirit and encourage me with their excellence. And I believe it must be so at observing the best efforts in any art or science, that one should feel both exaltation at the perfection of it and despair that one may not attain to it. To Mr. Chamberlin the critick's for dinner, which his sweet daughter Dolly did cook and very fine it was, too, and thence to the playhouse to see Mistress Fritzi Scheff do Mr. Blossom's ("Mlle. Modiste," of which I did like Mr. Herbert's music better than any other part. Saw on the stage Mistress Peggy Wood, and deemed her very pretty.

7.—To the tennis matches again with Deems Taylor the composer and about half an hour past three it grew black and came on to rain in great sheets and I could do nought save be drenched to the epidermis, all through my new blue suit, too, but in an hour the rain did cease and the play went on again and it was the best and thrillingest playing ever I saw, and Mr. Jones and Mr. Doust did beat Mr. McLoughlin and Mr. Hackett, and all played valiantly and the victors received great plaudits. Thence home and donning my grey suit, it being dry, and in the evening to the Garden where the striking silk-workers from Paterson gathered in thousands and had a pageant, very serious and very impressive, too, and I hope they may not long suffer the injustices that have been their lot. For surely this fair world was not meant to be thus.

8.—Up by times and reading "A Garland of Poems," by Emanuel M. Baum, which Mr. G. Denny the publisher gave me and which I had great joy from, as I did from Mr. Elmore and the Alamo Bard's poems. Thence to the tennis-court with C. Riegelmag the barrister and I beat him a sett, but he told me he was wearied and out of practice, as is ever the case with them I prevail over. Great St. Dunstan, I do wish I might live so long that one person I beat will not prate of his invalidity or age or the poor condition of his racquet! For in all my life I have never yet beat a man in the full bloom of his skill or health, but ever the halt and senile.

Mothers' Day

To Miss Anna Jarvis, Philadelphia, is given the palm of victory and the laurel crown for founding the second Sunday in May as "Mothers' day." Throughout the country, state after state has set aside this day or some later one in May in memory of her who stands the peeress of all ages, the mother—the greatest name to, mortals given. There is Children's day, Fathers' day and Parents' day, but the greatest of these is Mothers' day; for where there is no mother there is no day to found in her honor. So proud is Miss Jarvis of the homage paid our mothers in America that she has planned a trip to Switzerland and will appear before the World's Sunday School convention, which meets there early in July. She will plead for a world-wide observance of Mothers' day. She has already 2,000 delegates promised for the convention. A small, white button with the word 'Mother' upon it in the language of the country in which it is used was worn all over the world on Mothers' day. Also the white carnation was worn as emblem of the day."—Club Woman's Magazine.

SPORT VERSUS PLAY

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Play is activity exerted for the pleasure of the exertion.

It differs from work in that work is activity exerted for some pleasure to result from the exertion.

Words, like people, have all sorts of relations—some respectable and others that trail off into all degrees of disrepute.

One of the questionable relatives of Play is Sport.

Sport is Play with a list. It is Play twisted, abnormal, more or less off color.

Play is found in its pure state mostly among children. Grown-ups, as a rule, lose the art. Look out of the window any day, or pass by the school yard, and you can see Simon-pure play—children engaged in the games of leapfrog, foot-and-a-half, marbles, hop-scotch, tag, prisoner's base and pussy-wants-a-corner.

Not one adult in five hundred has sense enough to take part in such pastimes as these.

Having forgotten how to play, we have invented Sport.

Play is fun: Sport is alleged fun.

Billiards, pool, bowling, poker, horse racing, joy riding and turkey trotting bear about the same relation to real play that the glow of fever or alcoholic excess bears to the glow from skipping the rope.

Play is simple, natural, inevitable. Sport is complex, conventional, unrestful.

Play tones the body and mind. Sport leads to various morbidities.

Americans call it Sport when fifty thousand of them sit for two hours on the bleachers and watch eighteen men work at baseball. Children would never do that. They would not be happy unless they could climb down and get in the game.

Neither could children be induced to sit up all night in a room reeking with the fumes of whisky and tobacco and bet on cards; for this is not play; it is a species of neurasthenia.

The reason modern adults cannot play is that they are insane. They have accepted the absurd gospel of Getting On, which always produces insanity. The cream of their energy is devoted to driving, scheming and working in order to obtain more money, finer houses, richer clothing, and more lackeys than other people have. They sell their health of body and mind for precedence, pride and publicity. Those who fail talk suicide. Those who succeed are nervous wrecks.

It is the ambition of most of us to be finally idle. To have enough money to do nothing is our heaven here below.

Sport is the play of the idle, and the idle cannot play.

The canon of sport is fixed, as most of our rotten social notions are fixed, by the idle class of England, who have perhaps done more to debauch the world than any class, ancient or modern. Fox hunting and grouse shooting in the open and drunkenness and gambling in the house are sports de luxe. With the hall mark of aristocracy upon them.

Perhaps the most terrible indictment that can be brought against the city is that it has plenty of luxurious clubs for the diseased Sport of nervously wrecked adults, and no playgrounds for children.

"The modern world," said Prof. Ferrero at the Lucerne congress, "is paying Nature's price for the excesses to which it gives way—a price that takes the form of nervous diseases, madness, suicide and sterility. Those who attempt to lead it back to a saner ideal of life render it a service the need of which is best shown by the fury with which the ideal is apparently rejected.

The Journal's Letter Box

Editor The Journal:

Allow me as one of your permanent readers to thank you for your editorial of yesterday calling the attention of the legislature to the school book issue raised by Representative McCrory, of Ellaville.

You ask the question: "Why do the people of Georgia have to pay this more than half million dollars excess?" You say that patron, teacher and pupil are interested. As a teacher and superintendent I am vitally interested. The pupil and school child can't assist in reaching a correct solution of the question. The teacher can't unless the people will place in the general assembly representatives who will go to the bottom of the book manufacturing business and see what it really costs to produce teachable text books. Many of the books which we have been using in the public schools during the last five years have been placed in the hands of innocent school children at a profit of 100 per cent, the publishers being backed up by a contract to which the state of Georgia was a party. You ask for facts since this is a bold assertion.

I mail you under separate cover two copies of school texts on civil government. One is a general treatise of the subject and is sold under state contract at 54 cents. The other is local in its treatment and is sold for 25 cents. One is published by a book trust and allied influences, and the school child pays 54 cents for a copy. Because the state book commission says you will have to in order to get free tuition. The other text book, written by a Georgian, because the other was unteachable, and the product of an Atlanta printery, sells for only 25 cents.

If a big profit must be made on school books, let the state make it in order to settle the school indebtedness, and not foreign corporations as at present.

Trusting that you will keep this issue before the legislature until the innocent and needy are given some relief, I am

Yours truly,
H. S. BOWDEN.

Mother

I.

Mother! upon my heart,
Wherein enthroned thou art,
Lay
An emblem there to be,
Of love and memory,
This holy day.

II.

In this white flower I see
Love in its purity,
Love the divine.
A mother's death love—
Who can its bounds thereof
In words define?

III.

In reverent memory,
Deep in my heart for thee
I've built a shrine,
On which is carved thy name;
Love in its altar flame,
Dear mother mine.

IV.

Who still his head can rest,
Upon his mother's breast,
Happy is he!
Kissing her lips, her brow,
Oft will he wonder how Strong love can be.

V.

But he who to dumb skies,
Must turn his longing eyes,
Which tears make dim.
He, too, may happy be—
Love's faith a Saint shall see
Waiting for him.

Care of the Feeble Minded

By Frederic J. Haskin

The annual convention of the American Association for the Study of the Feeble Minded is now in session at the Michigan Home for the Feeble Minded at Lapeer. It will give consideration to several newly developed phases in the treatment of these unfortunates. The alarming increase in the spread of feeble mindedness and its relation to all manner of crime, has demonstrated, even to those outside of scientific circles, the necessity of some different methods of dealing with those who are in any way mentally defective.

Even so recently as a decade ago, many people believed that proper training could develop a mentally afflicted child to normal intelligence, and an increase in the training schools for feeble minded children was to a large degree a solution of the problem. Now no less an authority than Dr. Charles Harrison Frazier, professor of clinical surgery of the University of Pennsylvania, comes out with the opinion that little if anything can be done by this means to lessen the spread of the taint to the race. To the physician, feeble mindedness, imbecility, idiocy and amentia are terms designating a permanent deficiency of intelligence characterizing certain individuals. It is a state of mental defect from birth or from an early age due to incomplete cerebral development, in consequence of which the person affected is unable to perform his proper duty as a member of society.

According to the best scientific authority of the day such a condition is definitely inherited. Most of those who are competent to judge from practical experience with members of defective classes now agree that comparatively little can be done to restore them to a useful and independent life. Epilepsy is not yet thoroughly understood, but the consensus of opinion points toward the theory that this too is a defect of the nervous system which is transmitted to the offspring. Both the practical worker and the scientist now agree that something more drastic must be done in the future to save the race from the taint and the burden of these unfortunates. A careful estimate derived from studies made within the last two years indicates that there is now at large an average of one mental defective to every 350 persons, and one epileptic in each 2,000.

The close relation between feeble mindedness and crime is just beginning to be acknowledged. Dr. Walter E. Fernald, of the Massachusetts School for the Feeble Minded, states that at least 25 per cent of the inmates of all penal institutions are mentally defective. After an examination of the Lancaster reformatory, he pronounced at least 50 per cent of the girls mentally defective.

A recent psychological examination of the following institutions, with the results, indicates the justness of Dr. Fernald's theory:

New York reformatory, Elmira, 37 per cent.
New Jersey reformatory, Rahway, 33 per cent.
New York Reformatory for Women, Bedford, 37 per cent.
Massachusetts Industrial School for Girls, Lancaster, 50 per cent.
Maryland Industrial School for Girls, Baltimore, 60 per cent.
New Jersey State Home for Girls, Trenton, 33 per cent.
Illinois State School for Boys, St. Charles, 20 per cent.

Upon the basis of these figures there are 20,000 defective delinquents in adult prisons and 6,000 in juvenile reformatories or a total of 26,000 in actual custody in the United States. This indicates that the penal institutions have two distinct classes of inmates to deal with, viz: those who might be trusted to care for themselves if a proper moral character could be developed, and those who are so deficient mentally as to be incapable of assuming the full responsibility of their own condition. These two classes require absolutely different treatment so that the work of the alienist and that of the penologist may closely overlap in this problem of the feeble minded.

Having recognized the fact that the schools established in which specially trained teachers and improved educational conditions fail to materially lessen the number of mental defectives, since these children when sent out into the world are either returned or become in some other way a burden to the community, the students of mental defectives are seeking some other means of lessening the number of these unfortunates for each generation. A number of suggestions recently have been put into circulation looking toward the end.

One of these is to secure the passage of legislation in every state whereby institutions for feeble minded children shall hold their inmates by legal enactment as the insane are held. Where the consent rests with the parents, as in most states, their release after an apparent improvement often is secured against professional advice. A measure to be desired is the establishment by law of separate departments in all prisons and reformatories to which all mental defectives coming into the institution can be transferred. Another helpful movement will be the conversion of any public institution no longer needed for its present purpose into a state institution for defective delinquents.

The most important matter of all in the checking of the number of future defectives rests in the proper care of the feeble minded girls and women of child-bearing age. The care of the feeble minded girl is much more essential than that of the feeble minded boy. *Dr. E. Goddard, of New Jersey, recently said re*garding this matter: "The feeble minded woman is more dangerous to the community than the feeble minded man because she is more likely to find a mate than he is—possibly in the light of our present statistics in the neighborhood of three times as likely."

There are about 60,000 feeble minded women in this country, only about 13,000 of whom are now under institutional care. It is beginning to be accepted that one of the most important features of the campaign for lessening the number of mental defectives would be to lessen the number of defective children born into the world by placing defective women of child-bearing age in special institutions. Institutions for the feeble minded should cease to receive girls under twelve years old, and boys of any age, until after every feeble minded girl of child-bearing age is provided for in each state. The feeble minded girl is but a child, as innocent, helpless and childlike as her *normal sis*ter of half her age. Yet she is left without protection to be ruthlessly pursued by evil minded men.

The result of permitting feeble mided women to run at large is shown in a report by Miss Elizabeth Kite, a social worker, who investigated a degenerate colony in Burlington county, N. J. One feeble minded woman there is known to have 282 descendants. Miss Kite completed her report and the line is going on indefinitely. Out of this number 174 were born out of wedlock and 202 are distinct degenerates. Most of these are of the "moron" type—a type which is below normal in everything except its reproductive instincts, and in that respect is as overdeveloped as it is underdeveloped in other respects.

An interesting study showing the hereditary probabilities of the descendants is furnished in "The Kallikak family," published last year by Dr. Goddard. During the Revolutionary war a son of one of the most prominent families in New Jersey had relations with an unknown feeble minded woman. Afterward he married a woman of his own class and, as a result of this marriage, had descendants who are numbered among the statesmen, judges and other prominent men of the state. But he had even a greater number of descendants as a result of his illegitimate connection with the feeble minded woman and these descendants form a long line of degeneracy ending in the jails, almshouses, reformatories and other institutions. The girl who suggested this genealogical research is now in the Vineland Training school. She is illegitimate and almshouse-born and is physically twenty-two years old and mentally about nine.

TECH GRADUATES GOT DIPLOMAS WEDNESDAY

Twenty-Fifth Commencement at Grand—Farewell Luncheon at 1:30 o'Clock

Amid tremendous applause from an audience of fully 2,000 persons, seventy-one graduates of the Georgia School of Technology received their diplomas at the close of the commencement exercises held at the Grand opera house Wednesday morning.

Seated on the stage were the seniors along with President K. G. Matheson, members of the faculty and men prominent in the educational world. The scene was as impressive as any that has ever graced the stage of the Grand, while the audience was representative of Atlanta's interest in the memorable occasion. Society was present in all its beauty and as each member of the class received his diploma there was an ovation for him.

SENIORS MARCH IN.

Through a human lane comprised of the lower classmen stretched past Ellis street on Peachtree, the dignified seniors, headed by their president, the speakers and members of the faculty, marched into the opera house and took seats on the stage.

Following the invocation by Rev. Lyman Hood, D. L., Dr. Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati, Ohio, delivered the annual address to the students. His subject was "Old Institutions and New Ideas." His words were entirely in keeping with the subject.

The speaker urged upon the graduates the necessity of new ideas and the further necessity of putting them to a practical test despite the fact that the road to success would seem at times to be blocked with insurmountable obstacles. There were four stages for a great idea to pass through, he declared. At first it would be ignored; then ridiculed, later fought when its practicability appeared manifest and lastly, have a monument erected in its honor.

Dr. Bigelow appealed directly to these young men who are going out into the world, to have the courage of their convictions, and stick to the new ideas, the ideas that will at last make history, and place them in the light of notable achievements.

OTHER ADDRESSES.

Closing addresses to the graduates were delivered briefly by Chancellor David C. Barrow, of the University of Georgia and Dr. Nat E. Harris, president of the Tech board of trustees.

Prof. T. P. Branch announced the honor roll, and was followed by Governor Joseph M. Brown, who presented the scholarship trophies.

Finally came the conferring of the degrees which was done by President Matheson to the members of each separate senior course.

EARLY EXERCISES.

The day opened at the college with an exhibit of the shop work. From 8:30 until 10 o'clock, scores of visitors went through the buildings on the campus, viewing the handiwork of the men who have spent four or more years in study at the institution.

Despite the fact that this is an annual show, there is always something new to see, and interest in the event increases with each succeeding year. Proud parents from Atlanta and afar have the opportunity of seeing at first hand the practical results of their sons' studies.

A luncheon was tendered to the faculty and graduates at 1:30 o'clock in the Capital City club by the chamber of commerce.

THE GADUATES.

Following are the graduates: A. C. Adair, A. S. Goebel, J. Phinizy, J. A. Roby, W. G. Miller, R. W. Reynolds, F. H. Lanham, J. T. L. Brown, E. K. Thomason, A. C. Matthews, Jr., M. A. Jamison, G. W. BURLESQUE PARADE.

Hundreds of people lined Peachtree and Whitehall streets, Tuesday afternoon, and cheered the burlesque pageant of Tech students who paraded from the campus through business Atlanta.

The costumes were the gaudiest and most original ever here in many years. The band which headed the long procession was as discordant in the tunes it played as the uniforms were different in their make-up. The graduating class following the band was attired in cap and gown. The rest of the student body wore costumes of every conceivable make.

GEORGIA TECH BOYS ON PARADE

Tech students, attired in gay, festive and ridiculous costumes, invaded downtown Atlanta Tuesday afternoon, parading Peachtree and Whitehall streets from the campus following the annual class day exercises. This is the first time in the history of the institution that such a unique stunt has been pulled off by the lower and upper classmen and old "grads." They were all there in the parade of Tuesday and made merry for admiring throngs that lined the streets for blocks. The innovation proved a wonderful success, and will go down as a red letter event in collegiate history. From now on such a pageant will be an occurrence.

NEGRO DIDN'T SLEEP ON PORCH AT 80 12TH ST.

Statement That He Took a Snooze on Mrs. Gashet's Porch Was Wrong

The statement made in the final extra of the Journal Tuesday evening to the effect that Charles Jackson, a negro who is said to have run amuck in the vicinity of East Twelfth street late Monday, went to sleep on the front porch of Mrs. Lula Gashet, 80 East Twelfth street, is an error.

The witness who testified to that effect in police court evidently got his numbers mixed, as Mrs. Gashet says that the black did not even enter her front yard, never set a foot upon her porch, and was nowhere around the house.

DIDN'T HAVE T. B.'S BUT FINE WAS REDUCED

Because Zack Harris, colored, didn't have tuberculosis Tuesday morning and was truthful enough to own it, he had his fine for violating the traffic ordinance reduced from $3.75 to $1.00.

There were two cases before the Recorder Monday both of whom plead guilty of violating the traffic law. Harris admitted that he didn't stop when the traffic officer raised his hand, and the judge fined him $3.75.

When Sam Labovitz, a white man, plead guilty to the same charge a few moments later, he asked the judge to let him off light as he had been suffering from tuberculosis for two years. The judge fined him but $1.75.

The negro Harris was standing over by the rail at the time.

"Have you got tuberculosis, too, Harris?" queried the Judge.

"Naw-Sah, Judge," Harris grinned back at him. "But I wish I did this mawnin' to save me dat fine."

Whereupon the Judge reduced his fine to $1.75.

COTTON MARKET STEADY; PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER

Was Unchanged to 8 Points aWs Unchanged to 8 Points Off From Previous Close

NEW YORK, June 11.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 1 to 6 points under realizing and in sympathy with lower English cables. Reports of rain showers in the eastern belt attended the new crop months within 3 or 4 points of last night's closing figures, but predictions of clearer and warmer weather were considered favorable and the market seemed to be more or less unsettled during the early trading with July selling off to 11.95, or 11 points, under the closing figures of yesterday.

Trading became less active late in the morning and after showing a net loss of about 10 to 11 points on reports in the eastern belt attended selling hedges in New Orleans, prices ruled steady at rallies of 2 to 15 points from the low level on scattered covering.

Reports of warmer weather in the south favorable crop advices and claims that the south was selling hedges against prospective sales in New Orleans, caused the market to show a net loss of 8 to 10 points during the early afternoon and the undertone was more or less unsettled.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, June 11. The market has ruled very quiet today. The early break was largely attributed to July most of which is thought to be short covering. Principal selling today from some of spot interests. Weather map favorable, with some low temperatures, which is causing comment and uneasiness.

While sentiment is bearish, a decline just now is said to be unwise, as the bulk of the lowest grades over the stock they have received in the past few days will be sold.

Saving and Investing

The Youth of Finance.
BY JOHN M. OSKISON

Savings banks are only 102 years old at the first one was born in a picturesque thatched cottage in Scotland in 1810. It was an ironbound chest, with three great locks on it. The key to one of the locks was kept by the Rev. Henry Duncan, a friend of Carlyle, who rightated this saving idea for the people of his parish. Robbie Burns, to unlock the chest, two other trustees, who kept the other keys, had to be called in.

The Rev. Henry Duncan's idea was merely to provide a safe place for his Scotch working people to lay up their pennies was a long time before the savings banks acknowledged any other function than the safe keeping of money.

Investment by the people is of a very much more recent growth than the habit of saving. In this country, it had no practical existence before Jay Cooke undertook to sell government bonds to the people at the time of the civil war. Now the American public absorbs more than one and a half billions of securities every year. That is, of course, not new capital—perhaps only half of the amount represents reinvestment, and another slice is represented by the investment of dividends and interest payments.

Experts say that investing in the United States is still in the early stages of development. The habit is spreading by the people of moderate incomes and comparatively small earnings. What will the volume of invested capital be when the field is thoroughly cultivated?

We have watched the spread of the movement for getting investment by law for the average investor, and the rapid progress it has made is astonishing. It was at the 1911 session of the Kansas legislature that the first "Blue Sky" law was passed. Since then several other states have followed. We go fast when we get started.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says:

The talent danced attendance on the assertive spinning all day and was unusually large with shorts and stocks piqued havoc with longs. Professions seem to have lost the power of recognizing a bear when he has a bad all along the line. The same people apprehend the effect of rotten crops and rotten stocks. Theoretically speculators were covering short cotton lines in order to protect stock holdings. It was a busy short season and one the talent will not soon forget.

The bulls' buying movement lines formed a series of circles, wheels within wheels, like the market. All sections of the belt with the exception of southwest Texas, have been adequately soaked with rain promised. South West Texas will probably have received rain tonight. Amateur weather men, however, say the drouth in this section will not be serious in the belt at this time. At the close the rotton contract market quieted down and the buy easured was. Did New York July shorts effect a settlement? Rumor said they did. The commission men in Chicago and the talent said they did not. In the absence of a July sentiment higher prices for the mid-summer position are practically inevitable. Yesterday's reaction in the face of bullish crop news and on the heels of cabled reports of actual fighting among the Balkan allies, weather and crop news being ignored, was a severe shock to the last confidence in its own judgment. Heavy sales of the talent at the opening and after day, and relative as well as the actual strength of the bull movement in the market is to be measured some of supply to New York, have within a day or two done about as much to distort prices as anything. The talent has crossed July position has done in a week. Many have taken the July fall off for a lesson. Until they regain stamina the market will be very unsteady.

Map shows fair north central belt, partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere, warmer weather in Texas, cooler weather in Oklahoma. Low temperatures prevailing over practically the entire belt last night. The unsettled rains and the forecast of none unsettled and rainy weather in the belt have considered unfavorable. Immediately after the call the market was 15 to 25 points up and then fell off to a level 2 to 5 points under yesterday's close. At the end of the first half hour the bottom of the week, 1 point down to 2 points up, compared with yesterday's last prices. There was no pronounced trading or selling in the early trading.

The market gradually lost ground around the middle of the morning and afterwards unusually quiet, with prices at the lowest level quotated. Bulls expressed disappointment over the failure of the market to advance on cold weather reports. The market was in a worse tone than for several sessions past. Little attention was paid to the heavy spot trading in Liverpool or to reports of a better spot demand on this side of the water. At the low est of the day prices were 5 to 9 points under the close of yesterday. At noon prices were 2 to 6 points off.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The sharp upturn in stocks which began yesterday after the collapse Monday in the day was continued at the opening today. Stocks of all classes were in brisk demand and both railroads and industrials advanced sharply. Gains of 1 to 3 points were made by Reading, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Brooklyn Transit, Harvester, Consolidated Gas, Rubber, Cuba, Amalgamated Copper, Colorado Fuel and Republic Steel preferred.

Buying diminished when the immediate requirements of the shorts had been satisfied and prices declined. Reactions reached a point in a number of instances. Great Northern preferred, Southern Pacific and Steel receded to slightly below yesterdays closing.

A more cheerful tone characterized today's trading as compared with yesterday's violent movements, the market showing from the start the opening rise was influenced largely by the advance in sterling exchange in London.

The onward movement, however, lacked vigor. Speculation became inactive and the demand showed signs of falling off and the whole list gave way.

Support became moderately effective after yesterday's close returned to the neighborhood of yesterday's closing prices. Another buying movement followed. Liquidation continued in certain low priced issues.

Bonds irregular.

Trading fell off sharply to determined inclination to go up and bears hesitating to sell owing to lateness of the day. Speculation became dead locked. The final dullness was reflected in final figures but advances were mostly fractional.

International stocks became weak after a long period of inactivity. Canadian Pacific sold off 2 points and St. Paul 1 point under last night and other stocks were down 1 to 2 points below their best prices. Total sales of stocks today were 200,000 shares.

Sterling exchange was strong, with demand 60 day bills 4.86 9-16 cable transfers 4.87 cent the price down with a rush to 210½, which was the low of the day at the opening. The effect was a slump in all grains. Liverpool cable said at 12.30 and Steel at 49½, both new lows for the movement. Bonds were steady to a point under yesterday's close with sales, $1,750,000 par value.

Actress Tells Secret

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humors and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair." (Advt.)

MARRIAGE OF MRS. COOLEY AND MR. ARMSTRONG ANNOUNCED

The marriage of Mrs. May Blair Armstrong Cooley to Mr. Harold Rodney Armstrong took place at ten o'clock this morning at the home of the bride's father, Dr. Milton Nathan Armstrong on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Very beautiful decorations made the spacious rooms charming, the long green living room in which the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jere A. Moore, of the Harris Street Presbyterian church, was decorated with ascension lilies and palms. In the hallway and rose drawingroom the same color scheme was carried out.

In the dining room pink and green were used. The round table having for its centerpiece a large silver basket filled with pink roses sprayed with lilies of the valley and surrounding this were single candlesticks with pink shades. The bride's cake was heart shaped, iced in a pink rose design with a tinge of green.

The bride wore her traveling suit of black canton crepe with a coat of brocade with touches of white, a small toque with white wings completing the costume. She wore a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendant, her little daughter, Miss Mary Cooley, wore a French lingerie dress with blue ribbons and carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink rose buds and lilies. Mrs. S. F. Adams, the bride's aunt, was gowned in black crepe meteor trimmed in Duchess lace yelled in black chiffon.

Mrs. Robert Blair Armstrong wore a beautifully embroidered white crepe dress.

Only the members of the families and a few very intimate friends of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony, no invitations being issued on account of the family of the bride being in mourning.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong left at once for the north and upon their return in July will reside with Dr. Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow's Buffet Supper

The buffet supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Gilham Morrow entertained Tuesday evening at their home on Peachtree street was in celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary.

Supper was served at small tables, which were beautifully appointed in pink and white.

Invited for the occasion were the family connection and the intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Morrow.

How English Beauties Keep Faces Youthful

Christian Miller, F. C. I. noted English health expert attributes the early aging of American women mainly to the "national nervousness." The women of England she says can teach us the inestimable lesson of repose.

Another valuable lesson to be learned from the English woman is that she does not go in much for cosmetics, the continual use of which must ruin any complexion. The beauty devotees of King George's realm have the mercolized wax habit, a more wholesome method of keeping the face girlish-looking and healthy. Ordinary mercolized wax, used like cold cream, rejuvenates the worst complexion. American women may easily procure the habit, this wax being obtainable at drug stores generally in the United States. It is applied at night and washed off in the morning. One ounce is sufficient to completely renovate a bad complexion. It has a peculiar action in keeping the face free from the pimples, blotches and devitalized scarf skin which are constantly appearing.—Woman's Herald.—(Advt.)

RELIABLE GLASSES MODERATE PRICES

Surely everybody knows that a reliable and satisfactory pair of glasses is dependent on the skill and experience of the person making the examination, and that the price is controlled by the lens formulae (kind of lens required) and the style of the frames or mountings. Even though your circumstances are such that the price is of great consideration to you, the correct lenses should be of very first importance. We cannot imagine any better way to offer you our superior optical service (without seeming to boast) than to say we have served the public safely and satisfactorily for fifty years. There is no better recommendation in the world than the word of your friends who say:—"I have tried them and my glasses are perfectly satisfactory." As to the price of glasses, we can give you an elaborate, heavy, solid gold frame mounted with the finest lenses, or if you wish, the best lenses in a substantial, plain aluminum frame at a very moderate figure. Above all things, let us caution you—don't risk a pair of cheap glasses; your eyes are too precious and cheap glasses are the height of false economy. We will take pleasure in talking the matter over with you. We respectfully solicit your patronage and favor—but first, ask your friends about us.

What Anne Ritten-house Says

How would you like to have a coat suit of plaid taffeta?—You may soon wear one if you keep up with the fashion. They are among the new Paris offerings for June and the smart women will introduce them in America for the July and August social events.

And all of these suits are not even silk. Some of them are cotton. They look like bandanna handkerchiefs on a large scale. Of course they are not all brilliant, some of the colors are subdued and these are quite effective and desirable; but one doesn't really want to wear a knife pleated skirt and a loose blouse coat of yellow and red plaid cotton.

Whether or not these plaid suits will take hold of the American public is a question which cannot be answered off hand. Three years ago it, could have been laid aside with a gesture of intolerance, but today—well, after some of the costumes one sees on the public street the original fig leaf would be conservative and modest.

It is probable that no one knew the possibilities for evil that some of the most artistic and loveliest gowns of the epoch have developed, they are Frankenstein that have turned against their creators.

These possibilities are discoverable at first thought in the costume of plaid cotton or silk. Yet as they are worn by fashionable women abroad and may be worn by all kinds of women, here it is best to face the truth and try to avoid the danger.

When Plaid Appeared.

The first plaid suit that appeared in Paris was Scotch as to design and taffeta as to fabric. The skirt was narrow, fastened down the front and opened in that new way that has more grace to it than the straight slash but which has not penetrated into the majority of ready-to-wear gowns. It is curved line directly in front that gives a chance to step out but does not show either the front or the side of the leg.

The jacket was one of those negligee affairs that have pervaded the dress-making world with their loose shoulders, straight three-quarter sleeve, rounded peplum and long waisted folded girdle. The girdle in this case was of plain taffeta, as well as were the bands in the sleeves and the edges of revers.

The hat was of plain solid colored straw with a single fantasy standing up like a flame, and the blouse beneath the coat was of white muslin tied loosely at the neck with a ribbon of plain taffeta.

There was nothing especially startling in this whole costume when worn in the wide spaces of the racing park beyond Paris and there will be nothing unusual in it if it makes its appearance at any open air sport where it chimes in with the trees and grass; it is when such a costume is worn on the streets of a crowded city at 11 o'clock in the morning that it becomes grotesque and just here lies the possibility of evil with al lour new fashions.

Plaid Coats With White Skirts.

However, if one does not care to adopt a coat suit of plaid for any occasion one may like to take up the idea of wearing a short plaid coat with a skirt of white muslin or crepe or voile or satin. The latter combination is quite effective for any afternoon occasion, especially in the open, and the adding of plaid silk or voile in any way to a white crepe gown is a fashion that grows in power as people see how attractive it is.

There is no doubt that the public in general has accepted the coat of a different color from the skirt and as they have gone through the various paths of fashion that led to black, red, purple and green coats with white skirts it is only a tiny step further to ask them to wear Scotch plaid coats.

After all the coat of today is such a diminutive affair, which ends the moment it begins, that the dash of color is not inartistic. These negligee coats have a great deal of charm about them, especially in summer, and if a woman will try the fashion first in cotton and wear it over a soft draped white skirt she can then find out for herself if anything too much money whether or not she looks well in the combination.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

New Wives and Old

The kitchen door opened and John Craig entered. He smiled broadly. Upon the kitchen table was such an array as would make any hungry man's eyes brighten.

Mahala came out of the dining room, where she had been setting the table. She was plump, pink cheeked, and light haired. Her frock was crisp and her apron white, and John, turning from the food to her, thought her well worth coming home to.

She ran to him and kissed him. Holding her close in his big arm, John swung her round and pointed toward the laden table. "By the looks of that I guess you've had a busy morning."

"I can't cook!" she sobbed.

Mahala laughed and flushed. "Well, I have had. But wash up and come to dinner, dear."

John obeyed with alacrity. "Well, by George!" he said. "I'm sorry for any fellow that hasn't this to come to when he's played out and hungry."

He lifted the carving knife and fork and prepared to carve the meat. "Gee whiz!" he exclaimed, as he sawed laboriously, "but that's tough. That butcher has been doing you again, dear. You'll have to get after him and give him a blowing up. Never mind, dear. We've plenty else. It's getting too hot for much meat, anyway. By the way, Mahala, these raised biscuits are the finest I ever ate. They beat mother's all hollow."

Mahala smiled faintly at the would-be joke. It was enough to bring tears to her eyes to see the way John ate, chewed the meat, the sodden potatoes and the muddy coffee. "The biscuits, however, the pie and the doughnuts made up for whatever else the meal lacked, and John went back full and content to his afternoon's work.

After he had gone Mahala shed some real tears. "I ca-can't cook," she sobbed. "I've tried and tried, and I can't."

"For heaven's sake, Mahala Craig, are you crying?" The woman who had entered through the back door spoke so suddenly that Mahala gave a start and a little shriek. "There, I didn't mean to scare you," went on Mrs. Clark. "There's your fruit loaf. I guess you'll find it eatable."

"It's beautiful," said Mahala. "Everything you brought me was beautiful, Mrs. Clark. You're a splendid cook. I never shall be."

"Wait till you've been married eighteen years as I have. You'll cook well enough then to please anybody."

"Maybe," Mahala shook her head, dolefully. "Do you see that platter of meat? It was good meat, too, but I spoiled it in the cooking. It's too tough that we couldn't eat a particle of it. John thought it was the butcher's fault, but it was mine—mine."

"So long as John don't know that where's the harm?" soothed Mrs. Clark. "You just keep on trying, Mahala, and don't be afraid to come to me when you get stuck. I'll help you out. You better put that meat through the chopper and make hash for supper. I always put a bit of onion in my hash. It makes it so tasty, to my mind. Fruit, cool and brown. John will never remember his dinner."

But Martha was very uncomfortable, even she married John she could not as she said, "boil water without burning it." She had stepped out from behind her desk as a rural teacher into wifehood. She had tried to tell John that she lacked in housewifely lore, but John had laughed down her timid confession. His mother had been a born cook and he had an idea that the art of bread making came naturally to woman. Besides, there was always a recipe one could follow. He had bought a huge cook book for Mahala, bestowing it upon her with an air which said unmistakably: "There's your knowledge; use it." It was then Mrs. Clark made her offer. She would do the baking for Mahala and Mahala could have her time for other things. And John need not know.

"He must think I've improved awfully fast," thought Mahala. "I guess I haven't the knack of cooking. Poor John! He might better have married somebody else as far as that goes."

She was struggling with the meat chopper when Mrs. Spooner ran in. Mrs. Spooner was little and young and vivacious. She had not been married much longer than Mahala herself.

"Croquettes?" she cried gayly.

"No, hash," Mahala answered somberly. She was afraid of her sharp eyed neighbor.

"I came over," said Mrs. Spooner, "to get you to tell me how you made that delicious corn bread I saw on your table the other day."

Mahala dragged the huge, unused cook-book off the shelf and turned the pages with trembling fingers. "There it is!" she said.

Mrs. Spooner looked at the page, and then at Mahala. "Why, this is a recipe. I can't use," she said, dryly. "I have it in this same book at home. Perhaps you used Mrs. Clark's? She, I know, is famous for corn bread."

Mahala could not speak. Mrs. Spooner laughed and rose. "I guess I'll run over and get Mrs. Clark's recipe," she said.

Mahala stood watching her in agony. "What shall I do?" she asked herself.

Mrs. Clark came in, presently. Her long, plain face looked grim indeed. "It's a funny thing to me," she began, slowly, "that those some folks, don't can mind their own business. Eva Spooner's one. She came to borrow my corn bread recipe. She simply wanted to get her suspicions confirmed. She's meaner'n dirt. I came right to tell her so. Thinks I, It's a good thing for you, John Craig, you didn't take her."

"Why, did he ever—" Mahala caught her breath.

Mrs. Clark colored. "John did pay her some attention before you came into these parts," she said. "They were neighbor's children, you know, and it wasn't anything more than natural. Eva felt pretty bad there for a while when he first began going with you, but she got over it so far as to marry Cal Spooner. Maybe it's all out of her mind by now. I know it's out of John's."

"She'll tell him," though Mahala in torment.

It was a sad eyed Mahala who set

"I didn't make the pies and cakes and bread," she confessed.

the supper table and made ready for her John's home-coming, although the hash was browning beautifully and was a success. As soon as the 6 o'clock whistle blew she ran to the window to watch for him. Her heart gave a throb at her first glimpse of him. He was so big and splendid, and he was hers. He was walking home with Cal Spooner. At the Spooner gate they paused. John's hand was familiarly on Cal's shoulder and he was laughing.

As they stood thus the front door opened and Mrs. Spooner whisked out. She had on a pink dress, and fairly flashed with color and vivacity. She greeted both men, then she began to talk to John. She talked very fast, with gestures. John seemed to listen stupefied. He scratched his head as if in perplexity over the revelation she was making. When at last he got away he came toward the house slowly. Mrs. Spooner linked her arm through her husband's and went into the house. But at the door she flung a laughing triumphant glance back at John.

Mahala had turned white as her apron. All too well she knew what the scene meant. She hesitated till she heard John's step on the threshold. Then in a wild outburst she ran to him, clung to him, prayed to him. "Oh, John, John," she sobbed, "forgive me—if you can. I was going to tell you myself—I was, indeed. I know it was very wicked and mean and underhanded, but, oh, I always meant to tell you some time when I'd got so I should make them good as Mrs. Clark does—"

"Mahala Craig!" John dropped into a chair and took her upon his knee. "Stop

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

It was very early in the morning when Old Mother West Wind came down from the Purple Hills with her big family, out of which she emptied her children, the Merry Little Breezes, to play on the Green Meadows. Peter Rabbit, watching her from the doorstep of Jimmy Skunk's house, felt his courage grow and grow. All the night long he and Jimmy Skunk had sat on the doorstep listening to a strange voice, a terrible voice, Peter had thought. But with the first light of the coming day the voice had been heard no more, and now as Peter watched Old Mother West Wind, just as he had so often watched her before, he began to wonder if that dreadful voice hadn't been a bad dream.

So he bade Jimmy Skunk good-by and started for his home in the dear old briar patch and tried to think himself very brave. He wanted to run just as fast as he knew how, but he didn't. No sir, he didn't. That is, not while he was in sight of Jimmy Skunk. You see he knew that Jimmy would laugh at him. He wasn't brave enough to be laughed at. You know very few people are.

The bravest boy is not the one
Who does some mighty deed;
Who risks his very life, perchance,
To serve another's need.
The bravest boy is he who dares
To face the scornful laugh
For doing what he knows is right.
Though others mock and chaff.

But as soon as Peter was sure that Jimmy Skunk could no longer see him he began to hurry, and the nearer he got to the old briar patch the faster he hurried. He would run a little way as fast as he could, lipperty-lipperty, and then stop and look and listen nervously. Then he would do it all over again. It was one of these times when he was listening that Peter thought he heard the soft footsteps behind him. It sounded very much like the footstep of Reddy Fox. Peter crouched down very low and sat perfectly still, holding his breath and straining his ears. There it was again, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat, very soft and coming nearer, Peter waited no longer. He sprang forward with a great leap and started for the old briar patch as fast as he could go, which you know, is very fast indeed. As he ran he saw behind him a fierce, grinning face. It was very much like the face of Reddy Fox, only larger and fiercer and gray instead of red.

Never in all his life had Peter run as he was running now. It seemed as if trying to cry and talk at the same time. "What's upset you, dear? Tell me."

Mahala's head dropped on his shoulder. "I didn't make the pies and cakes or bread," she confessed.

John laughed low, tenderly. "Why, I knew you didn't all the time, sweet. Do you suppose I'm blind? You couldn't learn everything in a minute, could you? I found that out the first week we were married. I've eaten too much of Mrs. Clark's good cooking in my lifetime not to recognize it, even when I find it on my own table!"

Mahala sat up and looked less limp. "Then you didn't care even when Ev Spooner told you just now?" she asked.

John's brown eyes met her blue eyes in complete understanding. "She didn't tell me about that. She never mentioned it in any way, shape, or manner. She was a little excited about Cal throwing up his job. He quit this afternoon. He's been offered something better way from here, and they're going. I was wondering whether we hadn't better do the same thing ourselves.

"Oh, I couldn't leave Mrs. Clark—at least, not till I've learned to bake," Mahala cried.

"All right, then. Say, dearie, is that hash in the pan? Because if it is I'm right in the humor for hash."

"The Old Order Changeth."

This is an oft-quoted phrase, but nowhere is it more truly applicable than in regard to advertising. We need not be so very old to remember the day when we eyed all advertisements and advertisers with suspicion. The advertisements were regarded as traps to catch the unwary and the advertisers as "quacks" or "fakirs."

Not so many years ago a woman picked up a newspaper and exclaimed:

"Just listen to this: 'Blank, Blank & Co. desire to call the attention of their patrons to their fall importations of suits and wraps.' I never saw Blank, Blank & Co. advertise before. I wonder if they are going to get cheap!"

A few weeks ago the same woman said to a friend: "I had been hunting all over for that Oriental embroidery and had given up finding it when I just happened upon the very thing I wanted at Blank, Blank & Co's. I told the man it was a pity they had not advertised it and saved me tramping all over the city.",

This is a true story. The same woman, the same store, nothing changed but the time and the point of view.

Women of today feel aggrieved if the merchants do not keep them informed of their stocks through the medium of their newspaper—The Journal.

AMERICANS GREAT DASH DOWNED ENGLISH TEAM

Defenders Outrode and Outplayed Englishmen at Every Stage of the Game – Final Score Was 5-1-2 to 3–Created Slight Surprise

MEADOW BROOK CLUB, L. I., June 11.—Outriding and outplaying the English polo challengers the American cup defending team Tuesday won the opening game of the sixth International match by a score of 5-1-2 goals to 3. The English players did not show the vaunted team play which had been credited to them before the game, nor did their ponies outclass the American mounts. In fact the reverse was quite the case and in almost every run down field the American players either held their own or outrode their competitors in the race for the ball.

The combination work of the American four with Larry Waterbury at number 1; J. M. Waterbury, Jr., and L. E. Stoddard at number 2; Captain H. P. Whitney at number 3 and Devereux Milburn at back, was superb.

The challenging team, consisting of Captain D. St. George Cheape at number 1; Captain A. Noel Edwards at number 2; Captain R. G. Ritson at number 3, and Captain Vivian Lockett at back, appeared unable to work together consistently, else in all probability to close "covering" of the Americans.

Hardly had the game begun before it was seen that the the wagering odds of 8 to 5 on the English were not warranted, for the "big four" carried the play into the English end of the field and kept the cavalry officers busy defending their goal.

The drives of the Americans were made with excellent direction and length and they never appeared to have difficulty in hooking the ball out of scrimmage. The Englishmen were apparently stunned by the fierceness of the cup defenders' attack and failed to hold together in team work. The three goals scored in the first period went to the United States and it was not until the second period that the English four got going.

A RUSHING GAME.

Ritson and Cheape cut loose with some remarkable long drives and the invaders began to team up in a fashion that proved threatening. The work of Captain Lockett at back was remarkable in view of the attack piled at him. Larry Waterbury was playing a rus'ning game and his encounters with Edwards and Cheape were frequent and thrilling. Finally he was penalized for riding across Cheape who had just secured England's first goal with a fine shot from a hard angle. Larry Waterbury scored the American goal in this period.

The defending four rushed the English early in the third period but could not penetrate the challenger's defense. The fourth saw the Americans missing several easy chances to score and Captain Cheape also failed from a clear field. The only goal of the period was scored by Larry Waterbury which he partly nullified by a foul in crossing Captain Ritson.

The fifth period saw the English at their best. Captain Ritson scored with a lofting shot which the Americans were *unable to reach and Captain Cheape fol*lowed with a 75 yard stroke which had just enough momentum to carry it through the goal posts.

The succeeding session proved disastrous for the defenders for "Monte" Waterbury was hit on the hand by an opponent's mallet and his finger broken in two places.

He will not be able to play in Saturday's game.

Open riding and individual play marked the seventh period in which no goal was scored.

The American team, however, lost half a point because of an overscoring rule. Neilburn, in the final period of the eighth kept the ball i nthe American territory for several minutes but Stoddard finally cleared the ball in a run down field paved the way for Larry Waterbury to score the final goal of the game.

NOT ENOUGH DASH WORK

LONDON, June 11.—Viewed by the special correspondents of the London papers, who cabled long reports of the British team's defeat at polo by the Americans yesterday, the challengers' work received considerable criticism.

The Times this morning says:

"It is evident that the British forwards failed to take advantage of their opportunities. Even with this failure, however, they would probably have held their own if they had been able to withstand the onslaught of the American forwards in the first period."

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent says:

"The English team lacked direction. They were far from showing the brilliant game they put in at practice before the match. It was not only the offense that was weak, but the defense as well; and the majority of the American goals were the result of errors combined with the more aggressive tactics of the Meadowbrook team. When the English carried the ball up to the American goal, poor stick work invariably spoiled good dribbling."

"Englishmen will be amazed to learn," according to the Daily Mail's correspondent, "that at the outset the American ponies were speedier than the English, for it had been confidently asserted that a better collection of mounts than those of the English team had never been brought together. The whole American team played a cool and resourceful game, whereas the Englishmen seemed flurried and inclined to hurry their shots, *with unfortunate re*sults up to the third period."

At the end of the fourth period, the correspondent says, he "realized the veiled protests of the challengers that the right sort of playing men had not been sent against them in the practice games. The Englishmen were helpless against the vigorous tactics of the Americans, and made many unexpected misses."

Thornton Will Defend Title

Nat Thornton, the well known Atlanta tennis champion, is now in Richmond, defending his title of champion of the south Atlantic states. The tournament at that city will be one of the fastest that is to be held in the south this spring and the Thornton will put forth his best to go if he holds his title of champion of singles. Several well-known players are after his scalp and will go after it good and hard at this meet.

He will return this week and will enter the Georgia State tournament that is to be held at Athens, Driving Club beginning the latter part of June. He is also champion of this league. Later he will go to the southern meet that is to be held in New Orleans and there defend his title again. He will then go to Augusta where there will be a big meet held at the Country club. He is also champion of this place, so Dr. Thornton will have his hands full within the next few weeks trying to keep several championship titles in the city. Dr. Thornton is considered one of the best players in the country and but for the lack of time could compete in all of the big eastern meets.

McGovern Fights a Draw

BOSTON, Mass., June 11.—Charles Ledoux, bantamweight champion of France, fought Phil McGovern, of Brooklyn, ten rounds to a draw here Tuesday night. The French boxer had a little the better of the bout in the opinion of many spectators.

HOW GAMES WERE WON

Philadelphia won their fifteenth straight victory Tuesday by defeating St. Louis 10 to 4. Brown held St. Louis down to one hit in the first five innings, but weakened in the sixth and was replaced by Plank who needless to say shoved a few across the plate for the benefit of the crowds present. After the said Plank took the slab there was nothing doing and the Mackmen won easily.

Chicago defeated the Giants Tuesday by the narrow margin of one run. The game was won by a scratching hit. The game was one of the best seen at the local grounds in some time. In the ninth for New York the bases were filled but Shafer fanned and Saier made a beautiful one hand stab at Merkle's pop up and doubles out Burns at first. Burn's fielding was the feature of the game, the running catches at times being the cause of the score not being bigger than it was. Zimmerman was there with the goods and got three hits out of four times up. He may be slacking up but we all pity the opposing pitchers when he starts in to really hit the ball.

The home run of Scott was the feature of the game Tuesday when Chicago defeated the Highlanders 5 to 1. With Schalk on base in the fifth he layed next to the ball for a round trip ticket and this what started the ball rolling for a defeat for New York. Scott for the White Sox was effective in every inning but the fifth when he forced in New York's only run. A wonderful catch by Collins in the eighth again saved him from defeat.

In the quickest game of the season, Washington Tuesday defeated the Detroit Tigers by the score of 3 to 0. Washington got only one hit and yet won the game. Clausse passed Moeller and Milton in the sixth. House relieved him and Candill, the next man up for Washington, greeted him with a triple scoring both men and then a moment later scored himself on an error. Detroit got two hits while the Senators' only hit was a triple that won the game. Cobb did not get a hit. Vitt and Moriarity getting the safeties for the Tigers.

It took thirty-two players three hours Tuesday to play one game of ball, St. Louis finally defeating Boston eight to seven. The winning run was scored on Wingo's single after two singles and a sacrifice fly had put men on second and third. Konetchy was the batting star of the game being credited with a home run, a triple and two singles out of six times up. Hess for Boston pitched good ball until the seventh when the Missourian got next to him and drove in three runs.

With the score two runs against them the Philadelphia team came to bat in the ninth and scored two runs on three hits and three stolen bases and defeated the Cincinnati by the score of 3 to 2. Luderus, the crack first baseman of the Philadelphia team, knocked a home run in the fifth. Lobert, Beecher and Tinker were also there with the batting eye, getting a pair of hits apiece.

A pinch hit by Manager Fred Clarke in the ninth won the game Tuesday for the Pittsburgh team. This the third time since 1911 that he has batted and today he was in strong. The other two times that he batted for the pinch place, he struck out. He shot a liner to right field for two bags sending Kelly to third who scored a minute later on a single by Bryne. Cutshaw for Brooklyn got three hits out of five times up. Both teams played good ball and the game was full of Pep all the way through.

Next tp Meet Lookout Club

After Wednesday's double bill in Birmingham the Atlanta club will move over to Chattanooga for a series of three battles after which the team will come back to Atlanta for a series with Nashville and Birmingham. It will be the second visit to Chattanooga this season and with the usual luck encountered in Lookoutville the Cracker bunch is due to break even.

The Chattanooga club has won just one game from Atlanta this season while the Crackers have taken seven battles. It seems that the Crackers have Elberfield's goat and this Billy Smith intends to keep. The Lookouts right now are going at a mighty fast clip and it will take good ball playing to take the series which opens on Thursday.

FITZSIMMONS BOOSTS WHITE; CORBETT FAVORS JIM SAVAGE

Two Heavies Who Never Here Friday Evening Are No Dubs, Both Are First Raters

Bob Fitzsimmons believes that within ten months Sailor White will be the undisputed heavyweight champion of the world.

Jim Corbett claims that Savage is the cleverest heavyweight in the world and one of the best.

It is a coincidence that the two men who are to meet here at the auditorium-armory Friday night, June 13, are being boosted, backed, and in one case virtually prepared for the ring game by the men who made heavyweight history out at Carson City on that historic 17th of March, 1897.

Fitzsimmons believes he has the wonder of the world in Sailor White. The Australian boilermaker has always been partial to a man with a punch. He got as far as he went with little else besides one. And he worships the possessor of a kick, now that his has departed. When Fitzsimmons first saw White he looked wise and said nothing, but he was back to see him his next time out. This also was impressive. Then Bob began to take an interest in the big sailor. Much of Whites real improvement dates from this time.

The sailor arrived this morning over the Seaboard. His opponent Friday night is en route over the Southern and will be here this afternoon.

White appears in good condition. He is surely a whale for size, and if his punch is proportionate to his stature with the size of the brute there will be nothing to it but a knockout.

It has been a good while since Atlanta has had an opportunity of seeing a real heavyweight battle. And they are pretty sure to go to this one strong. This is a burg of heavyweight popularity. A bout for the lanamweight championship would not attract the crowd that any ordinary heavyweight battle would. But the coming bout appears something better than an ordinary affair. The fact that Savage is so clever that some flashy work can be counted on—enough to please the lovers of the high art of boxing. Few lightweights class with him in the use of his mitts. Sailor White is a rushing scrapper and a bad man with the gloves. He will appeal to the men in the galleries and to those who love a rushing, slam-bang affair. Between the two of them they should furnish a great affair, with plenty of variety and nothing but action. The Mike Gallagher-Terry Nelson mill-windup should offer a bout that will be better than the main bouts used to average in the old days, before the military companies began to stage their bouts at the auditorium-armory and the sparring game was put on the high plane it is now.

Nelson and Saul are the sort of lads who win medals for willingness. They are scrappers because they enjoy the pastime. Both started here as lightweights but both have been graduated into the welterweight class and they are close to the top. Among southern bred boxers there are none now of Saul's weight who have anything on him. He has been up and down the ladder of fame time and agin and is now on the upslant. Terry Nelson is a Greek and a Tartar rolled into one. He scraps hard because he hasn't any better sense. He has one of these sub-normal nervous systems that is practically impervious to pain—and he has a punch. It's a great combination for a semi-windup lad. For it makes for action.

The Fries-Britt go, at ten rounds, is attracting more attention than the experts supposed possible. These lads have a historic grudge and they will add another chapter Friday night.

They have trained hard for it and will go the whole ten rounds for blood.

TODAY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 11.—Nashville and Chattanooga consolide their series here this afternoon. The visitation of "Rockberry winter" continues.

Breckenridge or Flaherty will start the game for Nashville with Gibson catching. For Chattanooga Covaleskie will probably pitch and Street catch. The game is a benefit for a local orphanage organization.

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—Beckon and Adams for New Orleans and Cape Brown and Donahue for Montgomery were the batteries announced for the second game of the series here today. The weather was cloudy and cool.

MOBILE, Ala., June 11.—Pitcher William Robertson will be on the mound for Mobile in the second game with Memphis this afternoon with Charley Schmidt behind the bat. Manager Bernhard announces that he will work either Harrell or Leibhardt in the mound with Seabaugh at the receiving end. A majority of the members of both teams put in the off day Tuesday on fishing trips.

Hold Rifle Shoot

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., June 11.—The departmental rifle and pistol shoots will be held at Fort Leavenworth the second and third weeks in July, army officials announced last night. Fifty officers and 500 enlisted men will participate in the different events. Soldiers from the second division of the army now stationed in Texas will be among those who will compete.

ATLANTA HOLDS HONOR; IS BEST BASEBALL CITY

DOUBLE BILL WITH BARONS

Birmingham Turned Out but 3,207 Paid Admissions While Atlanta's Record for Season Is High as 8,836

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 11.—Paul Musser, who started the second game of Tuesday's double bill, and Gilbert Price will be the hurlers used by Manager Smith in today's double bill when he Barons meetsWorth will most likely use Hardgrove and Thompson. Dunn and Mayer will backstop.

The Crackers got away with the game played Tuesday and have to win but one of the games today to get better than an even break. However, Manager Smith is out for two wins, believing it possible to now start the climb up the ladder at the expense of the Barons. The team is in good shape and all believe a winning streak is due.

After the game here today the Crackers jump over to Chattanooga to open a three-game series. The Atlanta bunch has already won six in a row in Chattanooga and believe it possible to add at least two more on this trip. The Barons remain at home.

Motor Racing Tuesday Night

Everything Off at Motordrome Until Tuesday–Friday Bad Night

Jack Prince held a meeting with his riders at the Atlanta motordrome this morning to consider the possibilities of racing this week.

"There's only one date," said Jack, "that will do. That's Friday night, the 13th."

"Friday, the 13th!" and a shriek went up from the riders.

"Not me," said Marty Graves.

"I thank you, no," from G. Renel.

"And as for me," said Jock McNeil, "I wouldn't take the auld Jap out of the shed, much less race her—not on any Friday, the 13th."

And so it was decided that there would be no riding that night.

It seemed that the riders are as superstitious as jockeys or ball players. They believe in signs, omens, crystal gazing and hunches. And as for risking their necks on Friday, the 13th of June—well not even the pressing need of funds would make it interesting. At least one of the riders expressed his determination to stay in bed all that day, for the express purpose of keeping his neck safe.

With Friday eliminated from the list of possible nights, Manager Hudson and Jack Prince decided at once that next Tuesday was the logical time. And so it meet has been put over until that day.

Emory Refused Greatest Wish

(Special Disbpatch to The Journal.)

OXFORD, Ga., June 11.—The first vote taken on intercollegiate athletics for Emory college by the board of trustees in a decade was called late yesterday afternoon, resulting in a denial *of permission for the students to par*ticipate in certain forms of athletics by a majority of one, the vote being 15 to 14.

One hour was granted the supporters of the movement in which to present their petition. Lauren W. Foreman, of Atlanta, appeared in behalf of *the alumni, and J. E. Mathews, as chair*man of the students' committee, represented the students. Those in opposition from the students was I. E. McKellar, Cranston G. Williams, H. J. Pearce, Jr., W. W. Irvine, T. B. Magrath and J. M. Saxon, they being accompanied by a large delegation of alumni.

After the decision was reached on the athletic question a motion to prevent the question coming up again was defeated.

The students received the decision in good spirit, and are elated over the showing they made. They are preparing for another campaign, a new committee having been appointed as one of the present committee graduated today. The new committee consists of J. H. Saxon, of Cartersville; Cranston G. Williams, of Greensboro; E. W. Strozier, of Savannah; H. C. Howells, of Lake Park, Ga., and Victor Kitchens, of Oxford, Ga. The students are preparing for a campaign along the same line as pursued the year, condemning all spirit of antagonism and vandalism.

How Cobb Batted

There were only three hits gotten in the Atlanta-Birmingham double bill today, and Tyrus Raymond Cobb was not one of the selected few to connect with the ball for any good results. Walter Johnson was in the box for the Senators, and of course Cobb had just as leave hit Johnson as any one else, but the southpaw must have wanted to, so his average took a drop as a result of his no-hit game. His figures so far this season are:

Player.	G.	AB.	H.	R.	PC.
Cobb	35	120	50	19	.417

Smith's Double Copped Battle

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 11.—Despite the fact that it was flag-raising day and that Birmingham wanted to win mighty bad, Wallop Smith came to the bat in the twelfth inning and with two men on lined out to center field for a couple of bases, winning the game for the Crackers in one of the best games that these two teams have played in quite a while. The going was good all the while, and though Atlanta took the lead early in the game it was overcome in the fourth when Jim Brady got knocked to the four ends of the world for four runs.

Then Dent went in for the locals and handled the ball in great style, the Barons never having a look in after he assumed charge of the mound. Foxen was also effective, with the exception of that one fatal blow from the bat of that awful walloper, Wallop Smith. Welchonce and Alperman were on base in the twelfth when the mighty Wallop stepped to the plate and confidently expected to hit the center field fence for a couple of sacks. This was enough to break up the game, and soon after the two teams lined up and marched for the flag pole. Where pennant won last year was raised.

There was great cheering on the part of everybody present when the pennant was raised. The Atlanta team gave the Barons a great ovation when the bunting was put on the pinnacle of the pole. The second game was started a few minutes later, but brooding darkness and clouds caused the contest to be called in the first. After Foxen and Musser had been hit for one run apiece Musser for Atlanta and Hargrove for Birmingham will do the twirling in today's game.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Charley White and Jack Britton signed articles last night to fight twenty rounds at New Orleans on July 4. They will weigh in at 133 pounds three hours before entering the ring.

FIFTEEN STRAIGHT BATTLES ARE WON BY MACK'S BUNCH

Philadelphia Team Is Now Going Like House Afire–Want the Flag

Will it be Plank or Bender when that big game opens in the cool afternoon of next October? Will the big chief have his arm in good enough shape to handle the situation and do battle with the champs of the National league? At present he is going good, and as far as the Mackmen not winning the pennant in the American stick around friend, you haven't heard the latest dope.

Yesterday the Mackmen won their fifteenth straight victory, defeating the St. Louis team by the score of 10 to 4. This is sure going good and in reality the season has just started good. What will they do when real sure enough hot weather comes?

It looks as if Mack has got some team this year and the way that they have gone after a lead is remarkable. Fifteen straight victories in the early part of the season is certainly a fact worth taking cognizance of. All of the regulars are there with the goods and Connie Mack has a bunch of recruits that he has not yet turned alcose. In fact, he is not using any of his men to any great extent. It looks as if he was waiting and letting them rest for some time or some big event. Maybe he is resting up Plank for the opener and Bender for the second one.

Whether he has any such designs cannot be said definitely, but all things look as if the Athletics were getting ambitious and not content with getting fifteen straight battles are they were in reality realizing their highest hopes.

Pause, landlord, at the threshold;
Dare ye not enter in;
I will not listen to thee,
Accomplice to thy sin;
The mocking bird is pouring
Rare music from his throat,
And yet he doesn't cry to cash
A single liquid note;
The world is rich in summer,
There's wealth in Junetide's bliss—
How can you speak of money
On such a day as this?

Stop, Tailor, in the doorway;
Begone before I slay;
I will not listen further
To anything you say;
There's gold in summer's sunshine,
Her stars are silver hue,
Her morning meads are studded
With diamonds of the dew;
There's wealth aplenty for ye,
How dare ye come today
To rob a hungry poet
Of half a-seasons pay?

Win or lose, there can be no doubt, as Col. F. P. Adams suggests, that Mr. McLaughlin's scalp is in "the pink of condition." It was probably around the flaming lustre of his dome that this expression originated.

YES, WHERE?

Where, in the meanwhile, are those four or five "new pitchers" that C. Webb Murphy was about to page some two weeks ago? Is the callboy away on a vacation? Or were the four or five reported out?

"Which requires the greater skill and activity, queries a frenzied reader—"baseball, tennis, golf or polo?" We should say covering the four of them when they are all lumped together in one week's calendar of play.

Maurice McLaughlin, the California Comet, is a mixture of Bill Keeler and Frank Baker. "He hits 'em where they ain't" and "too hard to handle where they are."

Out of the sixteen original starters there are exactly eleven ball clubs in a tidy position to start that ringing debate entitled, "Next year." You can make your own dope as to the remaining five that have the possibilities of a look-in. To make it easy we'll furnish the name of No. 1, "Philadelphia."

The Phillies may decide to blow apart in July and then again they may decide to hang on grimly until the third game of the world series. But with four months left there is plenty of time to dope this out. They have the best club now they have ever put afield. As to what they will have two months from now, see preceding sentence.

"Don't applaud while the volleying is in progress, requested the announcer at the beginning of the International Tennis matches for the Davis cup, "AND PLEASE DON'T CHEER ANY ERRORS."

"Imagine," remarked a baseball fan who heard this plea, "some one making a request of this sort at a ball game. Fine little business, I guess."

Well, suppose we imagine it as per request? A ball player in a hard fought battle, where he is working at top speed kicks one, how much does it elevate or boost the game to have a loud chorus of cheers, jeers and general hilarity hurled in his direction? It's the part of the game—a recognized costume? Suppose, on the other wing, it was part of the game and a recognized costume for an audience of some 5,000 to follow you about in your bread-earning work poised and ready for a bowl of derision each time you kicked in with a mistake? Would you still think the custom a fair one—or something inclined to furnish you greater efficiency on the job?

You know how you feel about it when some kindly inclined friend steps up and whispers that you booted one. You know what a great little hit it makes when three or four together furnish the same sort of reminder. You might think this over when in the act of panning the epidemic off some athlete who blows one on a play that means a good bit more to him than it does to you.

This system wouldn't shut off the battle bowl of the tribe pulling for a home-spun rally or cheering a saving play. A sufficient amount of "vocal catalysm" could be used up in this manner without calling for the red-necked abuse, which though waning is still supposed to be a part of the game.

MATTY "HAS-BEEN" THEY SAID; NOW SETTING WORLD'S MARK

CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

Christy Mathewson, a well-known National league pitcher, who has been shining more or less brilliantly for the past twelve years as a member of the Giants, gives promise of another year as a star.

It was Mathewson who was infirm and due to wander to fields anew last fall. The fans conceded he might be with the team this year, but as for being of much use, not at all.

And behold, this spring Matty has won as many games as have Marquard, Tesreau and Demaree combined—the three who were to be the stars.

Not only has he been winning right along, but Matty has given the most marvelous exhibition of control ever shown by a pitcher. On April 17 Mathewson walked two Boston batters and then for forty-seven consecutive innings he didn't issue a walk.

Against the Cubs, Mathewson didn't pitch a single ball to the first eleven batters. During the game he pitched but seventy-five times and but eleven balls were called; but for ten fouls of perfect strikes by Zimmerman and Clymer, Matty would have broken his own record, of pitching fewer than sixty-seven pitched balls in nine innings.

Three Tourneys During Month

Tenis Stars to Get Busy on Monday—Plenty Men Are Entered This Season

This month is to be the big month at tennis for Atlanta and in fact all southern tennis players. There is to be a meet at the Driving club, one in Augusta and one in New Orleans. All of these will decide titles and incidentally all of the southern titles are held by Atlanta players. This speaks well for the city's athletic standing and though there were no brilliant marks made during the recent golf tournament by Atlanta players everything seems to point to the fact that Atlanta golfers are coming slowely but surely. With the education of the youngsters now well under hand, and the old players picking up every year, it looks good for an Atlanta year pretty soon.

The big meet of the month will be the one that is to be held at New Orleans. This meet will decide the championship of the south. The playing will begin on the 23d of June and will run until finished which will be in a week. The title in singles is held by Carleton Smith, of Atlanta, while the doubles are held by Carleton Smith and Nat Thornton. Here is a case where the city is well represented. Both the holders of the single and of the doubles title are local players.

The next biggest meet will be the one to be held at the Country club in Augusta, Ga., starting June 30. This will be the South Atlantic tournament, the title in singles being held by Nat Thornton and the doubles by J. K. Orr, Jr., and Carl Ramspeck. All of these men will go to Augusta to defend their titles.

The tournament that will attract most interest locally is the state meet that is to be held at the Driving club beginning with June 16 and running for a week. Nat Thornton also holds the state title in this association and will have to work mighty hard to hold it this time as several extra good players will be entered. Mansfield and E. V. Carter, Jr., are the doubles champion. This will be a great meet as there will be some of the best players in the south entered. The closeness of the players to the grounds will allow several prominent players to compete, who would not otherwise be able to enter because of business affairs. Just how many players will enter is not definitely known yet as the registration list has not closed and the names continue to come in. Several prominent Atlanta men will enter the Piedmont Driving club meet, among them are: C. Y. Smith, Ed. Carter, Jake Orr, Carl Ramspeck, E. Mansfield, Lloyd Parks, Frank Spratling, B. M. Grant and Nat Thornton.

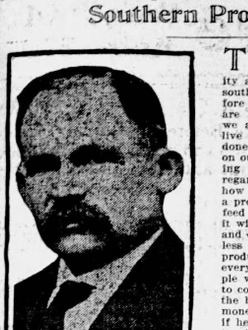
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Food Proposition---A Solution to Southern Prosperity



THIS situation means more to this country today for our future wealth and prosperity and to the development of the south than any question now before the public. When our farms are bountifully supplied with feed we are sure to see every kind of live stock follow, and until this is done we will never have live stock on our farms. There is no man going to buy live stock or poultry, regardless of how cheap it is or how bright the prospects look for a profit in it, and then have to buy feed from the west to take care of it with. No man can buy this feed and convert it into a profit, regardless of what price he gets for his products, but with plenty feed on every farm in this country our people will buy live stock and poultry to convert this feed into cash. And, the banks will not hesitate to loan money to any one to buy stock with if he has the feed to grow and fatten it on. The merchants will not hesitate to sell a man all he wants on a credit who has plenty feed and plenty live stock, and until the farmers of the south see the situation from this point things will never change. There is not a banker in the state of Georgia today but that will readily advance to any man during the month of April or May at least $50 per acre for ninety days or six months on a crop of growing alfalfa, because he knows positively when he does this that the man who owns the alfalfa can readily sell every six weeks at least $30 worth of hay per acre, and have something that he can pay his notes with. It is the best collateral on earth and the safest paper a banker can loan money on.

If it is so good in this respect why not go a step farther and say, "That with plenty alfalfa the farmer will build for himself an asset that he can borrow all the money he wants on at a basis of $50 per acre to buy live stock with," and can convert this food through live stock into twice as much profit as if he sold it for hay. Or, in other words, every acre of alfalfa he has planted is easily worth from $150 to $250 per acre to him if he feeds it to horses, hogs, cows, sheep or fowls. With the cheapest and best food on earth when used with judgment, namely cotton seed meal and hulls, we can finish up a quality of beef that no section of country on the globe could possibly compete with us in quality or weight if grown on alfalfa and finished or fattened on cotton seed meal and hulls. Our home markets will take all these products, and the western markets will readily pay a fancy price for them, especially if the highest grade of cattle are used to convert these feeds into money. Just so long as we depend on stunting our cattle or half feeding them for six months of the year just so long will we have a poor quality of beef that will only bring 4c or 5c per pound, but when we have sufficient feed in our barns to keep our cattle growing from the time that they hit the ground until they go to market, then we can afford to use the best class of cattle, force them and convert them into cash, and in less than two years' time weighing from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. We can do this at a handsome profit if we raise our own feed, and can never dote on having so until we do. They will eat their heads off and cost twice what we can get for them if we depend on bought feed, or if we depend exclusively on cotton seed meal and hulls to fatten them. We cannot grow them at a profit and feed exclusively on this diet. No man can make a profit out of a milk cow, beef cow, hog, horse, colt or poultry and buy the feed they consume at least one-half of their time. They will soon eat their heads off. We must raise this feed and keep the manure on the farm to raise bigger crops the following year.

Peas and alfalfa will show us the way to do this cheaply and at a big profit. With our splendid Bermuda grass and white clover pastures they would be a great help to us for four to six months of the year, but we cannot afford to buy feed for the other four to six months of the year. We must raise it and we must raise a crop of something that we do not have to plant every year, for the excessive labor and uncertainty of seasons will not allow us to depend absolutely on a crop that we have to plant and harvest every year.

Yours very truly,

POULTRY FEED POULTRY FEED

WHAT SUCCESSFUL POULTRY PEOPLE ARE FEEDING

The most successful poultry people of today are raising their baby chicks on dry mash and are also feeding their laying hens on dry mash. There are yet, however, people who continue to feed heavily on grain, because they can buy a 100 pound bag of scratch feed (grain) for about $2.25 to $2.50 per cwt., while they cannot buy the best dry mash (Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed) at that price per cwt., yet they overlook the fact that it requires at least 1 pound of grain for each hen per day; which at $2.50 per cwt., or 2 1-2c per pound, makes the scratch feed (grain) very expensive feeding. A hundred pound bag of Aunt Patsy will run 20 hens 30 days, on full feed, and at the cost of $3 per cwt., it costs only 1-2c per day, per hen, against 2 1-2c per day, per hen, to feed on scratch feed. Besides, the scratch feed only fattens the hen and produces very few eggs, while AUNT PATSY is, in every sense of the word, an egg producer.

All we ask is that you give Aunt Patsy a trial as compared with grain feeding, and convince yourselves that you will get more eggs from feeding Aunt Patsy than you will from the use of scratch feed, and at the same time you will feed your hens at about half the cost of feeding them on grain or scratch feed.

BALKAN WAR QUESTION NOW NEARING DECISION

Servian Minister of War Declares It Will Be Settled in a Few Days

BELGRADE, Servia, June 11.—The Servian minister of war today declared that the question of war between Bulgaria and Servia would be decided in six or three days.

Servia, he said, must retain all the territory which had been occupied by her troops and the European powers must persuade Bulgaria to modify the treaty of alliance entered into with Servia, before the war with Turkey. Otherwise, he concluded, war was certain.

Railway communication between Servia and Bulgaria has been stopped. Servian newspapers assert that the Servian minister to Bulgaria is about to visit Sofia.

The Servian cabinet today decided to send a firm final note to Bulgaria asking for a meeting of the premiers of the two countries.

ARTIST'S MODEL, VIOLIN PLAYER AND ACTRESS

Jenny Nelson was born in Copenhagen, Denmark. She is a good violinist, is an A 1 rough rider and an artist's model.

She played for four years in the king's theater in Denmark before she came to this county in search of fame and more fortune. On her way to her present vocation she worked in the studios of Paris, New York and Philadelphia. Now she's one of the feminine leads in the big Lubin moving picture producing plant at Philadelphia.

"I'd rather ride a bucking broncho," she says, "than toy with a bottle and a bird!"

This picture shows Miss Nelson in a characteristic make-up. She is so fond of her horse and her riding achievements that she scarcely ever wears anything but her cowboy suit, unless her role requires it.

Though born away up under the northern lights Miss Nelson adores the Golden West type of girl. That's her particular line of work in the Lubin company.

MILTON COLEMAN WINS ANNUAL DECLAMATORY CONTEST AT PEACOCK

Owing to an oversight, the account of the exercises of the Peacock-Fleet school was omitted from the school page of last week. They were held in the auditorium of the school on Fourteenth street, with a large audience in attendance. The main feature on the program was the annual declamatory contest, in which seven six of the schools best declaimers, the competitors for the gold medal that is yearly offered by the faculty. Each speaker acquitted himself in fine style and the contest, as a whole, was quite above the average. In fact, so closely grouped were the speakers that two hours elapsed after a very lengthy and equally as careful deliberation that the judges, composed of Messrs. Avery, Etheridge and Stiles, were able to select the one speaker whose declamation surpassed those of his rival competitors. The successful speaker was J. Milton Coleman. His rendition of "Grattan's Invective Against Corry" was well done and received much praise.

Below is the program of the contest: "Robert Emmet's Speech Before Sentence Himself," Emmet—Derry Bellum Osborne.

"Regulus to the Carthaginians." Kellogg—Arthur Wilbur Powell.

"The Character of LaFayette," Prentiss—Frank Weldon, Jr.

"The New South," Grady—Lewis Sane.

"An Appeal for the South," Grady—John Augustus Wayt.

"Grattan's Invective Against Corry," Gratton—John Milton Coleman.

Immediately following the declamatory contest a number added to the program another declamation by A. C. McPhail.

He took for his subject "The Defense of John E. Cooke, by Daniel W. Voorhees, the declamation with which he took first honors on April 11 at Taft hall.

The following night—Friday—witnessed the last social event of the school year, the annual students' dance. This important event was given in the hall in the school gymnasium, which, when prepared for the purpose, makes an excellent ball room. It was a delightful affair and was attended by the students, the school alumni and only a few invited outside friends. Dancing was held from 9 until 2 o'clock, and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by nearly every one.

The two above entertainments served the double purpose of bringing the school year of 1912-13 to a brilliant close and of placing it in the annals of history as completely the most successful of all the successful years in the history of the institution. We have given weekly accounts throughout the past nine months of the events of the week in P.-F. S.—accounts of the victories and defeats in athletic and literary circles, and now, in viewing them in the aggregate, we are impressed with the excellent record that has been made. In literary, athletic and social lines, indeed, apparently had their own way. First and second honors, respectively, were taken in the interscholastic declamatory contest, the first number of the medal offered in Peacock-Fleet by the United Daughters of the Confederacy received seventh honors in Fulton county—second honors out of 2,500 essays. And, again, in athletics, were we comparatively successful—very successful when the advance made this year over the standing of the past few years is taken into consideration. In the pigskin warfare we did not advance an army into the field of interprep hostilities. In the mid-winter session of basketball affairs the team started the season in an excellent pace, but, unfortunately, slackened toward the latter division of the season. They finished the program with two other clubs above them in the percentage list. With the horseshide pellet and the big stick, P.-F. S. took a fourth place position. With the material which appeared for the team, however, this cannot be considered a discreditable showing.

And now we come to the end. With the close of the past term of school many of us are bidding farewell to the realms of Atlanta high school circles. To those who are preparing to ascend to the heights of collegiate life we who are left behind bid them farewell and wish them success. Those who have yet to contend with the struggles of a high school scholar we leave with regret, wishing them equal and even better success than we ourselves experienced during the past few years. And to all of those whom the writer has furnished for the last two months with the events of the week in the Peacock-Fleet school he bids them farewell.

UNFROCKED CLERGYMAN WEDS FLORETTA WHALEY

Marriage License Obtained as Soon as Certified Copy of Divorce Was Procured

(By Associated Press.)

STAMFORD, Conn., June 11.—Jere Knode Cooke and Floretta Whaley were married by a justice of the peace in the parlors of a local hotel this morning. The witnesses were two of friends of who came here with the couple last evening.

The unfrocked Episcopal clergyman and his bride came here late last evening after a trip to Willimantic to get a certified copy of decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Marinda Clarke Cooke. The certified copy was a necessary preliminary to the application for a marriage license in this state.

This morning Cooke and Miss Whaley obtained marriage license as soon as the license clerk's office opened, and shortly after 9 o'clock marriage service was read.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooke then returned to their home in New York.

The divorce decree granted to the former Mrs. Cooke named as co-respondent Floretta Whaley, with whom Cooke eloped from Hempstead, L. I., six years ago.

Two children have been born to the pair since that time. Since his expulsion from the ministry, Cooke has been working as a house painter in New York.

USE GREAT CARE WHEN SELECTING BABY'S NURSE

State Board of Health Issues Interesting Bulletin About Nurse Girls

The latest bulletin issued by the state board of health is in regard to the baby and its nurse. It is given here in full.

Too little thought is given to the selection of the baby's nurse. Some people seem to have the idea that any old sort of a girl will do. They do not stop to find out whether or not there is consumption or other contagious disease in the house where the nurse comes from, nor do they try to find out if the nurse herself is free of diseases which their baby might easily contract. What about the nurse's moral character? Many a poor baby, no doubt, has become infected with one or more of the so-called social diseases by being nursed by a girl or woman of loose moral habits. Then, too, the nurse's intelligence. It may be claimed that it does not require very much sense to be able to nurse a baby. Right there is where a mistake is made. If it is important to have a good intelligent gardener to help you bring your plants and flowers to perfection, how much more important it is to have a good, healthy, intelligent nurse to help you bring your baby to perfection, and start it out on life's road with a good constitution and without deformities. Get a nurse that is neat and clean, or for the baby's sake don't get a nurse at all. If the nurse is dirty and has an odor that nauseates you, and makes you sick when she comes near you, how horrible it must be to the poor baby, who, on account of its helplessness and inability to protest and get away from this stench, has to stay with it and endure it day in and day out. Tell the nurse how to get rid of this odor, and if she does not do it, get rid of her.

DON'T CHEW FOOD FOR BABY.

Never allow the nurse, or baby's grandmother, or any one else to chew up food and give it to the baby. It may be all right for the older birds to carry food in their mouths and deposit it in the mouths of the young birds, but this does not do in the case of human beings. There is no other way for the birds to feed their young, but there are other ways for human beings to give their young food. This practice, besides being unnecessary, and disgusting to think about, is really dangerous. Besides causing bowel troubles, just think of the danger of your baby contracting any disease in this way. The intention of the nurse, or yourself, or the grandmother, or other party may be perfectly good and praiseworthy, but the injurious effects are just as sickening and deadly as though the intention were bad.

Another thing, do you know where the nurse goes with your baby when she takes it out for a walk? How do you know that your defenseless baby is not lying in its carriage neglected, with the sun beating into its eyes, while the nurse is idly gossiping with some one she has ignored the baby's welfare and comfort? How do you know that your baby, that is dependent on you for protection, is not playing on the floor in some negro shanty where dirt and filth are paramount; or may be it is being taken up on the bed and being fondled by some diseased or sick person who is fond of children, but is ignorant of the dangers of giving their disease to your baby?

WATCH THE NURSE.

After you have employed a nurse and found that she can't be, or won't be taught how to properly care for your child, discharge her. Don't keep her and try to excuse yourself by saying "she is the best I can get." If you do keep such a nurse don't try to lay the blame on Providence if your baby sickens and dies, or becomes injured for life as the result of having a disease or careless nurse.

The proper nursing of a baby requires constant thought and attention. It is something more than rocking the baby to sleep, which is not necessary, and it is something more than changing the baby's napkins, which is seldom done as often as is necessary. If you must have a nurse select her carefully, and then watch her constantly. It is up to you.

RECALCITRANT SENATORS ARE DRIVEN TO CORNER

President Wilson Has Placed Them Where to Waver Indicates "Lobby"

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—President Wilson has maneuvered the senate into a corner. He has created a background calculated to frighten recalcitrant Democratic senators as tools of an "insidious" lobby. If Democratic senators waver on the Underwood bill, the inference is that the lobby has "got" them. The Democratic senators know this and the tariff will not be revised upward. They dare not take the risk, especially in these days of direct elections.

The president's charges of an "insidious lobby" was one of the most effective strokes of practical statesmanship which Washington has witnessed in years. In the midst of a critical situation in the senate, the president built a backfire upon the senate's reputation. During the past ten or fifteen years the senate has been known the country over as the millionaires' club and the citadel of the interests, under Republican control. Popular distrust has grown more and more faster than the senate's bad reputation.

The president struck at the senate's weakest point and said, in effect: "If you do what the interests want rather than what the consumers want, you prove the accuracy of the country's suspicions." He vile bill will be passed, and you will be branded as a lobby-directed, interest-controlled club of legislative "free-boosters."

The mood of some senators is now becoming almost the same as it was in the old Roosevelt days. They do not yet hate Wilson as they hated Roosevelt, but they are quite as strongly opposed to Wilson's policies. The president's tactful phrases made personal animosity out of the question. But if the president puts weak-kneed senators into the class of the disreputable bolters such as this one, Mr. Wilson may become to some senators one of the best-hated presidents the country has ever had.

Quite likely Mr. Wilson has discounted the possibility and is willing to take the chance. From the standpoint of popularity it was found in the Roosevelt administration that the hostility of the senate was a splendid asset.

PLAN RETALIATION.

Senators in the privacy of the cloak room discuss methods of getting back at the president. One proposal was that a senator, in testifying at the lobby inquiry, shall tell how he was approached by a man who influences legislators to do what they know not to be right; then to declare that a number of Democratic senators have been forced to do what they believe to be wrong and to charge that the pressure influencing them comes from the White House. The testimony of Senator Townsend, of Michigan, was along the line of this cloakroom gossip.

The indication is that the country at large is with the president, and that it is taking delight in the strong hand with which he is directing legislative affairs. The people have always enjoyed having a president who knows what he wants and knows how to get it. Woodrow Wilson is proving himself just about that kind of a president.

So long as the inquiry started by Townsend, is fully carried out, the senate can count upon the gun recoiling in accordance with that law of physics which says that the force in such reflection is equal. The only question in this case is whether the law of physics will hold. Is there a limit to the patience of a president, who shows an inclination to make reaction stronger than action, unless he is the man behind the action.

Another proposal which is receiving quiet consideration is to put a crimp into the power of the president. Many senators feel that the president has too much power. This belief has always prevailed in the senate when the White House has contained a determined and brainy president. So now the proposal is renewed to curb the presidential power. For instance, the senate would be willing to relieve the president of the power of making many appointments which are confirmed by the senate. This would do away with the opportunity of the White House to coerce senators by withholding patronage.

WITHHOLDING PATRONAGE.

Now it is true that President Wilson, whether for effect upon legislation or not, has been moving slowly with the distribution of patronage. But it is not at all true that the power of the president is gauged by the dispensing of patronage or by any actual legal rights or limitations. Usually the use of patronage has been a boomerang. Mr. Taft found it so. The insurgents, made them angry and lost power by it. His course was an important step toward the party smash.

The power of the president rests chiefly, if not altogether, upon his own wisdom, his skill as a strategist and the popular approval behind him. If the senators do what the president wants done with the tariff, it is because they defy popular disapproval if they do not follow the presidential wish. In the event of opposition from them the president will, of course, use against them the influence of the presidency and will try to retire them to private life. But in this attempt the people will be the jury and the withholding of patronage will only gain sympathy for recalcitrants, in the event that the people consider them right and the president wrong.

Mr. Taft had just as much power as either Roosevelt or Wilson, and used the patronage power in a fashion as striking as is known in modern politics. He was not a powerful president, because he lacked strategical ability, determination and popular appeal. The legislative department or constitutional amendment can head off the sort of power which Mr. Wilson is now exercising, unless perchance the senate should be relegated to the same innocuous aloofness as the kings in the exceedingly limited monarchies of Europe.

THE SENATE'S ATTITUDE.

Senators have tried to take the teeth out of the lobby inquiry. They have defined a lobbyist as a professional solicitor who uses undue influence and perhaps money. Having pictured the lobbyist as an individual so dark, most of the senators have said that they knew nobody of that sort in Washington. This attitude has tended to free the senate of the imputation of harboring a lot of hirelings of the interests—which is what the senators were probably after. Had the definition been extended by all to cover lobbying in the sense set forth by the average dictionary, the committee would have been provided with a whole assortment of subjects into whose operations they might inquire.

The inquisition in and out of congress, however, is that the lobby in Washington is not disreputable in the sense that it formerly was. Washington no longer knows the stout railroad agent with passes sticking out of every pocket. When there used to be eight or ten former members of congress lobbying with their one-time colleagues, now there is hardly one. But two former senators are now recognized in Washington as professional lobbyists, Faulkner and Thurston. Nor is there in evidence a lobby of anything like the proportions which haunted the capitol during the pendency of the Payne-

DEGREES ARE CONFERRED ON PRINCETON STUDENTS

Doctor of Laws Degrees for Count Bernstorff and Dr. Francis L. Patton

(By Associated Press.)

PRINCETON, N. J., June 11.—Exercises in connection with Princeton commencement were brought to a close here today with the 146th annual graduation ceremonies in Alexander hall, at which 255 members of the graduating class received their initial degrees.

In addition, nine honorary degrees were conferred, masters' degrees were awarded to forty, doctor of philosophy degrees to thirteen, and electrical engineering to three.

Among the honorary degrees, that of doctor of laws, the highest which the university is able to confer, were bestowed upon Count Johann Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador to the United States, and on Dr. Francis Landey Patton, who was president of Princeton from 1888 to 1892 and whose resignation as president of the Princeton Theological seminary recently was announced.

The diplomas were presented by President John Grier Hibben, of the university, who presided at the exercises. Of the 255 members of the graduating class, 124 received the degree of bachelor of arts, 89 received bachelor of letters, 23 bachelor of science and twenty civil engineers.

President Hibben announced that Mrs. Russell Sage had promised to give $100,000 for a new university dining hall, provided the university raised $400,000 for the same purpose.

During the year, President Hibben stated, about $600,000 had been raised for endowments and about $212,000 for current expenses.

The resignation of former President Francis Landey Patton, as lecturer in ethics, was received.

GRIFFIN PATRONS ASK PROTECTION FROM TRAINS

Petition Says Trains Arrive on Three Parallel Tracks at Same Time

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 11—The situation regarding the safety of people alighting from trains at the Griffin depot has reached such an acute stage that a petition has been sent in by citizens of Griffin, to the railroad commission, in which the request is made that the commission force the railway company to provide protection.

At the depot at 9 o'clock every morning three passenger trains are discharging and receiving passengers at the same time.

Only a day or so ago Miss Bessie Greer, aged sixteen, was caught between the Southern and Central tracks, when trains were moving on each track, and knocked unconscious by the Southern train.

AVIATORS BEGIN RACE FOR THE POMMERY CUP

PARIS, June 11.—The leading French aviators started this morning in the competition for the aviation cup of Pommery cup, which goes to the aviator making the longest flight across country from sunrise to sunset on the day during which period he may stop as often as he likes to replenish fuel.

Marcel G. Brindepone des Moulinas ascended at dawn from Villacoublay, near Paris, and flew in the direction of Wadsaw, Russian Poland, while Ernest Francois Guillaux left Biarritz on the Spanish frontier at the same time, flying in a northerly direction.

Aldrich bill. Then all kinds of interests were heavily represented, while now few interests are represented in force save sugar. The result is evident that these interests is evidently what the president had in mind when he issued his statement.

Some few of the Democratic senators believe that the administration tariff program is too drastic. They would not stand for it were it not for the constant and heavy pressure. But the pressure is there and the senators have to stand by. For instance, when a committee was investigating the "insidious" lobby, a subcommittee of the senate equalized a schedule by putting flour and meat on the free list.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, visited the president, secured a few "suggestions," reported to his colleagues and another method of equalization was adopted. Wheat and cattle were put on the free list, instead. Revision upward, it appears, is out of the question, in the face of this "insidious" lobby. President Wilson does not propose that the senate shall do his tariff legislation while it is off to the tariff hills of Cleveland and Taft.

INTENSE ITCHING AND SMARTING

Breaking Out on Chin and Neck. Blotches Covered with Crust-like Fish Scales. Hair Came Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured Entirely in Two Weeks.

Bissell, Ala.—"About one year ago I was attacked with a breaking out on my chin and neck something resembling tetter. The general appearance of the breaking out was that of raised red places covered with crust-like fish scales. It would cause the most intense itching and burning. To shave caused bleeding and burning.

"I tried several different kinds of cures which were no benefit in the least. They made matters worse. The malady kept spreading slowly until my scalp was attacked by it. My hair came out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment were recommended to me by a friend. I purchased one cake of Cuticura Soap and a 50c. box of Cuticura Ointment and began to use them. I washed my face with warm water, using Cuticura Soap and drying with a soft towel, afterwards applying the Cuticura Ointment twice daily, morning and night. In two weeks' time I was cured entirely of this skin trouble, leaving skin softer and clearer than before." (Signed) Frederick D. Woods, Nov. 5, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do much for poor complexions, red, rough hands and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston.

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

WOMEN OF GEORGIA ARE ASKED TO INFLUENCE LAW FOR BIRDS

BY Miss Nina Hornaday.

"Who killed Cock-robin?"

"I," said the sparrow,

"With my little bow and arrow,

"I killed Cock-robin."

Modern scepticism rejects the rest of the history of this tragedy in bird life. The sparrow allowed no obsequies over his enemy's dead body.

On the contrary, he called in the aid of his friend, the beetle, and with her cunning needle, they fashioned feather boas and cigrettes and feather muffs from poor robin's feathers.

In the Sunday edition of the Bird Family newspaper, they advertised bargains—and the little lady birds went early to secure these beautiful adornments marked down to $3.98, etc.

Always is it the wisest which has caused the destruction of birds, never has it been man's unsportsmanlike greed for slaughter.

Women, however, will no longer bear this idoum of public censure. All over the United States they are organizing to help the various societies that are trying to save our wild life.

The New York Zoological society is fighting for the preservation of wild beasts and birds of the world.

In the new tariff law they have succeeded in introducing a clause that is favorable to this interest. The clause has passed the house and is under consideration by the senate of the United States.

Following is the text of the Zoological society's proposed revision:

"At the end of section No. 438 of the new tariff law, and the following:

"PROVIDED, that the importation of aigrettes, egret plumes or osprey plumes, and the feathers, quills, heads, wings, bills, skins or parts of skins, of wild birds, either raw or manufactured, and not for scientific or educational purposes, is hereby prohibited; but this provision shall not apply to the feathers or plumes of ostriches, or to the feathers of domestic fowls of any kind."

A very dangerous amendment to this clause has been introduced by Senator Clapp, of Minnesota. Its exact wording is as follows: "Or to the feathers or plumes of game birds usually killed for food and birds which are killed as pests."

If this were adopted it would throw two doors wide open to the slaughter of about 100 birds that the society desires to protect. It would mean the extermination of such beautiful pheasants as the impeyan, argus, Reeves, Amherst and the trapogans; and the condor, all eagles, hawks, owls, crows, jays, herons and egrets could easily be killed and imported as "pests."

I have been requested to ask the aid of the women of Georgia in this effort to have the original clause adopted, rejecting the unfortunate amendment.

I am sending out a circular letter asking the co-operation of local and state societies of women. The time to act is right now. The views of the women of the state must get to our state senators, and must go at once.

The support of the following will be sought:

State Federation of Womens clubs.

The Daughters of the American Revolution.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The Colonial Dames.

The United States Daughters of 1812.

The Ladies' Memorial Association.

The Council of Jewish Women, and other organizations that are interested in welfare work.

Senator Hoke Smith, holds the balance of power, for he is on the committee of finance of the United States senate, which is composed of Senators Turnifold Mc L. Simmons, chairman; John Sharp Williams, Hoke Smith, William J. Stone, Charles S. Thomas, Charles F. Johnson, Ollie M. James, Benjamin T. Shively, William Hughes, Thomas P. Gore, Boise Penrose, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jonathan J. McCumber, Reed Smoot, Jacob H. Gallinger, Clarence D. Clarke, Robert M. LaFollette.

The appeal of the Zoological society is signed by Henry Fairfield Osborn, president; Madison Grant, chairman executive comittee; William T. Hornaday, director New York Zoological park.

Captain Schlomberg requests that all who intend to take part in the races report at Lakewood some time this week to apply for entrance and practice a bit.

NEGRO ESCAPES GALLOWS FOR KILLING ANOTHER

Governor Brown Tuesday morning commuted the sentence of Wash Dean, a negro, scheduled to hang Friday at Decatur, Dekalb county, to life imprisonment. In doing so the governor acted upon the recommendation of the prison commission, the trial judge and the solicitor general who prosecuted Dean.

The negro was convicted at the October term of the Houston superior court for the murder of Tom Johnson, another negro. According to the record, the killing occurred in an altercation and there was great provocation.

Had the governor not interfered Dean would have been hanged on Friday, the 13th. It's unlucky. Quite a hoodoo combination, that.

SUGAR LOBBY PROBED BY SPECIAL COMMITTEE

Activities of Hawaiian Sugar Interests in Behalf of Tariff Is Heard of at Probe

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Activities of Hawaiian sugar interests in behalf of a tariff on sugar were taken up again today by the senate lobby committee.

Royal D. Mead, of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association, said he received a salary of $1,000 a month for his work in Washington. His efforts, he said, were confined to gathering and distributing sugar statistics. He thought $15,000 would cover his annual expenditures.

Mead produced a detailed account of his receipts and expenditures in Washington. He had received $8,000 from the Hawaiian Sugar association and had spent $5,548.16 up to last night.

Upon the demand of Senator Gronna, the committee today subpoenaed A. Y. Moore, publisher, and A. M. Baker, manager of the Courier-News, of Fargo, N. D., to explain a recent editorial intimating that Senator Gronna knew something of the use of money in Washington to influence legislation.

Mead told the committee that after terminating the $2,500 publicity contract the domestic sugar producers had retained Mayo at a salary of $200 a week to help run the sugar publicity campaign. None of the money spent for advertising, said Mr. Mead, had been used to influence the editorial policy of newspapers. The total amount spent by the Hawaiian Planters' association for all purposes was about $400,000 a year, he said, and was raised by assessments. Most of the money had been used, he said, for a sugar expedient station in Hawaii and for securing Philippine laborers.

Elmer E. Paxton, of Hawaii, who followed Mead, said he came to Washington in March to represent Alexander and Baldwin, owners of Hawaiian sugar plantations worth $27,000,000.

Conferences had been held with other sugar interests, he said, and letters had been sent to the 1,500 or 2,000 customers of his firm urging them to write to their congressmen and senators and protest against free sugar.

THOMAS CROPS HURT BY HEAVY RAINS

BOSTON, Ga., June 11.—The incessant rains of the past ten days have worked great havoc upon the crops of this section. Complaints are coming from all sections of this county, especially from the melon growers.

Quite a number of farmers assembled here today, state it is conservative to estimate that the melon crop has been cut off at least 20 per cent by the unfavorable weather.

E. R. Whaley, a large farmer of this section, states that the corn crop has been damaged inestimably by the wind and rains.

Farmers were just ready to "lay by" corn when the rains began, but the effect of the wind has made it practicably impossible to plow the corn the last and most important time.

Cotton is also suffering from the cool and rainy weather.

DEMOCRATS READY TO CONSIDER COTTON TARIFF

Majority Members of Finance Committee of Senate Considering Reports

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Majority members of the senate finance committee continued today to consider changes in the Underwood tariff bill proposed by the sub-committees.

Under discussion today was the metal schedule reduced by Senator Stone's sub-committee, duties on pig iron and ferro manganese having been removed and reductions proposed in structural steel and other rates. The pottery schedule, in which there have been some changes, including increases, also was taken up and the committee expected to reach the cotton schedule.

With regard to print paper, Senator Johnson's sub-committee has under consideration a plan to leave paper valued at not more than 2 1-2 cents a pound on the free list, but, in lieu of a proposed countervailing duty, to insert a clause which would provide for a duty of $2 a ton should restrictions on exports of wood and pulp in the Canadian tariff not be removed within a stated period, probably a year.

The provision would not specify Canada, but that would be the only country affected.
